Excavations at Milla Skerra Sandwick, Unst Olivia Lelong, 2019-03-31 During the late 1st millennium BC into the early 1st millennium AD the small island of Unst in the far north of the Shetland and British Isles was home to well established and connected farming and fishing communities The Iron Age settlement at Milla Skerra was occupied for at least 500 years before it was covered with storm blown sand and abandoned Although part of it had been lost to the sea excavation revealed many details of the life of the settlement and how it was reused over many generations From the middle of the 1st millennium BC people were constructing stone walled yards and filling them with hearth waste and midden material Later inhabitants built a house on top with a paved floor and successive hearths and more domestic rubbish accumulated inside it Outside were new yards and workshops for crafts and metalworking which were remodelled several times The buildings fell into disrepair and became a dumping ground for domestic waste until the 2nd or 3rd century AD when sand buried the settlement Within a few generations a man was buried beside the ruins along with some striking objects Thousands of artefacts and environmental remains from Milla Skerra reveal the everyday practices and seasonal rhythms of the people that lived in this windswept and remote island settlement and their connections to both land and sea

drink of the fully fledged professional The book also proposes new ways of doing things tried out over the author's thirty years in the field and brought together here for the first time This is no plodding manual but an inspiring provocative informative and entertaining book urging that archaeological investigation is one of the most important things society does

The Chapel and Burial Ground on St Ninian's Isle, Shetland: Excavations Past and Present: v. 32 Rachel C.

Barrowman,2017-12-02 This volume is the definitive account of the excavation which led to the discovery of the magnificent hoard of 28 pieces of Pictish silverware on St Ninian's Isle Shetland in 1958 It includes a reassessment of the original archives and finds including an ogham stone found on the site in 1876 and a fantastic collection of glass beads as well as several new small scale excavations on the site of the chapel and its burial ground Taken together this work reveals a long sequence of settlement beginning in the Iron Age The first church was built on the site in the 8th century and accompanied by a long cist cemetery with cross incised stones and shrine sculpture The church may have continued in use into the 9th or 10th centuries and the recent work has confirmed that the famous hoard was buried into its floor There was a degree of continuity between the pre Christian and Christian burials with evidence that the site was a special place for burial before the advent of Christianity The report describes these burials in detail ending the story sometime between the 11th and end of the 12th centuries when an adult male who had died a violent death was moved to be buried on the site Thereafter the site was inundated with wind blown sand A new chapel with an accompanying long cist cemetery was then built above the earlier church and a chancel was added later The associated graveyard continued in use until around 1840 long after the building was demolished
