roadmap for maximizing data quality in interviewer administered surveys The Total Survey Error Approach Herbert F. Weisberg, 2009-12-29 In 1939 George Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion published a pamphlet optimistically titled The New Science of Public Opinion Measurement. At the time though survey research was in its infancy and only now six decades later can public opinion measurement be appropriately called a science based in part on the development of the total survey error approach. Herbert F. Weisberg's handbook presents a unified method for conducting good survey research centered on the various types of errors that can occur in surveys from measurement and nonresponse error to coverage and sampling error. Each chapter is built on theoretical elements drawn from specific disciplines such as social psychology and statistics and follows through with detailed treatments of the specific types of error and their potential solutions. Throughout Weisberg is attentive to survey constraints including time and ethical considerations as well as controversies within the field and the effects of new technology on the survey process from Internet surveys to those completed by phone by mail and in person. Practitioners and students will find this comprehensive guide particularly useful now that survey research has assumed a primary place in both public and academic circles Survey Methodology Robert M. Groves, 2004-04-30 Survey Methodology describes the basic principles of survey design discovered in methodological research over recent years and offers guidance for making successful decisions in the design and execution of high quality surveys. Written by six nationally recognized experts in the field, this book covers the major considerations in designing and conducting a sample survey.

Envisioning the Survey Interview of the Future Frederick G. Conrad, Michael F. Schober, 2007-12-10 Praise for Envisioning the Survey Interview of the Future This book is an excellent introduction to some brave new technologies and their possible impacts on the way surveys might be conducted. Anyone interested in the future of survey methodology should read this book. Norman M. Bradburn, PhD, National Opinion Research Center, University of Chicago. Envisioning the Survey Interview of the Future gathers some of the brightest minds in alternative methods of gathering self-report data with an eye toward the future self-report sample survey. Conrad and Schober, by assembling a group of talented survey researchers and creative inventors of new software-based tools to gather information from human subjects, have created a volume of importance to all interested in imagining future ways of interviewing. Robert M. Groves, PhD, Survey Research Center, University of Michigan. This collaboration provides extensive insight into the impact of communication technology on survey research. As previously unimaginable communication technologies rapidly become commonplace, survey researchers are presented with both opportunities and obstacles when collecting and interpreting data based on human response. Envisioning the Survey Interview of the Future explores the increasing influence of emerging technologies on the data collection process and, in particular, self-report data collection in interviews, providing the key principles for using these new modes of communication. With contributions written by leading researchers in the fields of survey methodology and communication technology, this compilation integrates the use of modern technological developments with established social science theory.

The book familiarizes readers with these new modes of communication by discussing the challenges to accuracy legitimacy and confidentiality that researchers must anticipate while collecting data and it also provides tools for adopting new technologies in order to obtain high quality results with minimal error or bias Envisioning the Survey Interview of the Future addresses questions that researchers in survey methodology and communication technology must consider such as How and when should new communication technology be adopted in the interview process What are the principles that extend beyond particular technologies Why do respondents answer questions from a computer differently than questions from a human interviewer How can systems adapt to respondents thinking and feeling What new ethical concerns about privacy and confidentiality are raised from using new communication technologies With its multidisciplinary approach extensive discussion of existing and future technologies and practical guidelines for adopting new technology Envisioning the Survey Interview of the Future is an essential resource for survey methodologists questionnaire designers and communication technologists in any field that conducts survey research It also serves as an excellent supplement for courses in research methods at the upper undergraduate or graduate level

Couper, 2012-08-29 A comprehensive framework for both reduction of nonresponse and postsurvey adjustment for nonresponse This book provides guidance and support for survey statisticians who need to develop models for postsurvey adjustment for nonresponse and for survey designers and practitioners attempting to reduce unit nonresponse in household interview surveys It presents the results of an eight year research program that has assembled an unprecedented data set on respondents and nonrespondents from several major household surveys in the United States Within a comprehensive conceptual framework of influences on nonresponse the authors investigate every aspect of survey cooperation from the influences of household characteristics and social and environmental factors to the interaction between interviewers and householders and the design of the survey itself Nonresponse in Household Interview Surveys Provides a theoretical framework for understanding and studying household survey nonresponse Empirically explores the individual and combined influences of several factors on nonresponse Presents chapter introductions summaries and discussions on practical implications to clarify concepts and theories Supplies extensive references for further study and inquiry Nonresponse in Household Interview Surveys is an important resource for professionals and students in survey methodology research methods as well as those who use survey methods or data in business government and academia It addresses issues critical to dealing with nonresponse in surveys reducing nonresponse during survey data collection and constructing statistical compensations for the effects of nonresponse on key survey estimates

Survey Research Methodology, 1990-1999 Graham R. Walden, 2002-09-30 Survey research is one of the most widely used research methodologies across the social and behavioral sciences Two trends that have had a major impact on the development of survey methods over the last decade are
