[ED. NOTE: This two-part article is not just about gold and silver. It is about the end of the U.S. dollar era, as we have known it since World War II. It is about the implications of the world financial balance of power shifting to China and Asia. It is about the explosion and turmoil in the Middle East, global inflation, and how individuals, families, citizens, and investors can get their assets out of harm's way. Please study this two-part report closely, and ponder its implications.]

GLOBAL FINANCIAL UPHEAVAL: AS THE BULL MARKET IN PRECIOUS METALS REACCELERATES

"China's central bank said it is concerned over a possible slide in the U.S. dollar if there is a widespread move to sell off dollar assets. The People's Bank of China said in its 2006 Financial Stability Report that Asian and emerging countries also may need to adjust their foreign-exchange holdings to reduce risk, if the U.S. current account deficit growth continues to be higher than GDP growth, the economic value of U.S. assets will be questioned by global investors, and the willingness of investors to continue holding and buying U.S. financial products may weaken", the central bank said. -- Forbes.com (12/9/06)

"Iran, the world's fourth-largest oil exporter, plans to reduce its use of the U.S. dollar in world trade and investment of the same, two Tehran-based newspapers reported. The Tehran Times said today Iran has started substituting euros for dollars in oil sales, citing an unidentified person at the Oil Ministry. Iran Daily reported Iran wants to end its dollar-based transactions as a minimum, citing Minister of Economy Davoud Danesh-Mand. -- Thomson.org (12/9/06)
