Participants reported a variety of physical emotional and spiritual symptoms as well as relational difficulties experienced during burnout Cho describes how their self help approach characterized by independent religious self effort brought only temporary relief Through self care however they experienced genuine recovery Self care that leads to lasting recovery is holistic and grace based characterized by a correct understanding of the roles of God and others in their lives and engagement in authentic community for interdependent care This study also gives insightful recommendations to missionary member care systems mission agencies and other sending organizations in an Asian cultural context about how to care for Korean missionaries It is also intended for counselors of home churches so that they can provide better member care for burned out missionaries Lastly this study advances research into contextually appropriate paradigms and strategies helpful to cross cultural missionaries in the area of both Korean missionaries and non Western studies in missionary member care

Waters, 2002-12-12 The children of immigrants account for the fastest growing segment of the U S population under eighteen years old one out of every five children in the United States Will this generation of immigrant children follow the path of earlier waves of immigrants and gradually assimilate into mainstream American life or does the global nature of the contemporary world mean that the trajectory of today s immigrants will be fundamentally different Rather than severing their ties to their home countries many immigrants today sustain economic political and religious ties to their homelands even as they work vote and pray in the countries that receive them The Changing Face of Home is the first book to examine the extent to which the children of immigrants engage in such transnational practices Because most second generation immigrants are still young there is much debate among immigration scholars about the extent to which these children will engage in transnational practices in the future While the contributors to this volume find some evidence of transnationalism among the children of immigrants they disagree over whether these activities will have any long term effects Part I of the volume explores how the practice and consequences of transnationalism vary among different groups Contributors Philip Kasinitz Mary Waters and John Mollenkopf use findings from their large study of immigrant communities in New York City to show how both distance and politics play important roles in determining levels of transnational activity For example many Latin American and Caribbean immigrants are circular migrants spending much time in both their home countries and the United States while Russian Jews and Chinese immigrants have far less contact of any kind with their homelands In Part II the contributors comment on these findings offering suggestions for reconceptualizing the issue and bridging analytical differences In her chapter Nancy Foner makes valuable comparisons with past waves of immigrants as a way of understanding the conditions that may foster or mitigate transnationalism among today s immigrants The final set of chapters examines how home and host country value systems shape how second generation immigrants construct their identities and the economic social and political communities to which they ultimately express allegiance The Changing Face of Home presents an important first round of research and dialogue on the activities and identities of the second generation vis a vis their ancestral homelands and raises important questions for future research An Ecological Prediction Model of Bullying Behaviors Among South Korean Middle School Students Chang-Hun Lee, 2007 Bibliography on East Asian Religion and Philosophy, 2001 This comprehensive research bibliography compiles annotates indexes and cross references resources in the principal Western languages which focus on China Japan and Korea in the areas of philosophy and religious studies supporting resources in theology history culture and related social sciences A notable additional feature is the inclusion of extensive Internet based resources such as a wide variety of web sites discussion lists electronic texts virtual libraries online journals and related material Korean Mind Boye Lafayette De Mente, 2018-04-24 Understanding a people and their culture through code words and language Today South Korea is an economic technological and
