Abstract: Smoking behaviour has a harmful impact on teenagers, including the lack of motivation to achieve academically. Previous research claims that the perception of smoking and the motivation to quit smoking may impact smoking behaviour. The purpose of the research is to identify which one of both variables play a stronger role in its impact toward the teenager's smoking behavior. The research is a quantitative research involving 192 teenagers as the sample in Bandung city, using questionnaires on perception, motivation, and behavior. Data analysis used univariate and bivariate and Spearman correlation tests. The findings of this research shows that 56% of Bandung teenagers have a positive perception, 51% others a positive motivation, and 56% positive behaviour. This proves that the coefficient value of the correlation between perception and motivation is 0.238, and the coefficient value of the correlation between motivation and behavior is 0.387. This research concludes that the motivation to quit smoking has a stronger relationship than the perception of smoking. Thus, to change the smoking behaviour in teenagers, it is necessary to increase the motivation to quit smoking whatsoever. Possible actions is to have a counselling session to help change the teenager's health behaviour. The value of study to obtain the unique characteristic of teenager in Indonesia.

1. Introduction

Adolescence is a transitional period from childhood to adulthood; at this stage, some emotional and behavioral turbulence are identified, one of which is smoking problems (Chadds, 2014). Based on the research from Azagba and Wolfson (2018) the quantity and frequency of smoking can be considered high and categorized as heavy smokers, including electronic smokers.

The data from World Health Organization (WHO) (2018) claim that the number of smokers above 15 years old in 2015 is 1.114 million, consisting of 939 million male and 175 million other females. In Asia, there are 237 million smokers, slightly higher than the number in the last 5 years, which is 235 million in 2010. Out of all Asian countries, Indonesia has the second highest number of smokers after India. According to WHO (2018), Indonesia has 74 million smokers in 2016 (71.637 million male and

Smoking Behaviour from Pre-adolescence to Young Adulthood Anthony Victor Swan, Michael Murray, Linda Jarrett, 1991 This book presents a comprehensive longitudinal analysis of a study which followed over 6000 children through their school careers from the age of 11 and into young adulthood until they reached 21 years of age It considers the methods needed to make full use of such complex longitudinal data The authors attempt to show how the levels of smoking at different ages and the patterns of uptake vary according to children's circumstances environment and attitudes Finally the way in which the likely benefits of health promotion may be estimated is illustrated indicating that they may be substantial

Smoking in Adolescence Barbara Lloyd, Kevin Lucas, 2014-01-14 What factors influence adolescents to take up smoking Why do more girls smoke than boys In contrast to medical orthodoxy Smoking in Adolescence looks at smoking from the adolescents own points of view What emerges is that regular smokers are seen as fun loving and nonconformist cigarettes are a passport to a fashionable popular and hard identity Young people create and are influenced by complex images of smokers and nonsmokers Barbara Lloyd and Kevin Lucas explore the psychological dimensions such as social environment family peers stress and coping body image mood and pleasure They suggest how anti smoking interventions should be re evaluated to take account of this new evidence throughout the school curriculum Smoking in Adolescence will be of practical interest to teachers youth workers health professionals and parents as well as students of psychology The Health

Behavioral Methods in Social Welfare Steven Paul Schinke, James. K Whittaker, Scott Briar, 2017-09-08 Behavioral Methods in Social Welfare offers positive proof that behaviorism has come of age in social work Steven Paul Schinke and the contributors to this volume are social work practitioners who document their attempts to extend the basic tenets of behavioral psychology from the laboratory clinic and classroom to the full range of client groups and social problems that make up the practice of social work In social work education traditionally to the extent it appeared in the curriculum at all behavioral content appeared in electives or in courses not focused on practice It is a true measure of progress that behavioral methods are now visible integral component of social work education and practice The authors of each piece in this collection indicate progress in developing an empirically based approach to social work practice Despite the impressive documentation contained in the present volume no conclusive evidence as to the effectiveness of behavioral methods exists What behavioral methods do offer however is a systematic format for both problem intervention and evaluation that over time should produce a more empirically based practice A promising sign well documented in the present effort is the facility with which this book has subjected practice procedures to the rigor of research and evaluation This blending of clinical practice and research develops the sense of competence that student practitioners acquire in understanding and controlling both the art and science of their clinical practice Steven Schinke and his colleagues offer a series of snapshots of important work in process Their collective portrait provides a fresh perspective and new stimulus for all social work practice as well as an affirmation that disciplined responsive and sensitive social work intervention can make a difference in the lives of people
