Social Inequalities And Cancer:

Social Inequalities and Cancer Manolis Kogevinas, 1997 In both industrialized and less developed societies cancer incidence and survival are related to socioeconomic factors This fascinating volume the first to examine the magnitude of these socioeconomic differences in relation to cancer provides vital information for all those interested in public health Cancer incidence and survival are related to socioeconomic status in both industrialized and less developed countries These differences can be explained in part by known risk factors particularly tobacco smoke occupational exposures reproductive behaviour diet and biological agents T Reducing Social Inequalities in Cancer S. Vaccarella, 2019-06 This volume summarizes the current scientific evidence and identifies research priorities needed to decrease social inequalities in cancer The publication based on the expert knowledge of more than 70 international scientists from multiple disciplines undertakes a populations within populations approach highlighting the large variations in cancer incidence survival and mortality that exist between countries and within countries between social groups Several factors may lead individuals with low social status to adopt unhealthy behaviors to be exposed to a wider range and a higher intensity of cancer risk factors and to have reduced access to health care services compared with their fellow citizens A special focus is given to how the phenomenon of inequalities in cancer evolves and is reshaped over time driven by economic social political legislative and technological forces it affects everyone but the most disadvantaged individuals are particularly hard hit This IARC Scientific Publication was developed to serve as a reference for policy makers and public health officials linking to specific examples of interventions that may reduce future inequalities in cancer The vignette is attached Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Guy Launoy, Vesna Zadnik, Michel P. Coleman, 2021-05-31 This contributed volume addresses the link between the social environment and cancer in Europe The authors document the wide range and diverse trends in cancer incidence and patient survival in Europe and they identify the main mechanisms and key influences that underlie these inequalities They suggest a series of actions and programmes to tackle these inequalities in Europe within the conceptual framework of intervention research The influence of the social environment on the risk of suffering and dying from cancer is obviously a global phenomenon as evidenced by a growing number of studies and books In part the underlying mechanisms are universal Given the availability of a new standardised measure for social deprivation in Europe the European Deprivation Index the networking of population based cancer registries across Europe as efficient surveillance tools the increasing comparability of the organisation of care in European countries and the recent launch of Europe's Beating Cancer Plan this extensive review of social inequalities in cancer on a European scale is both relevant and timely The book consists of 21 chapters organised in four sections Part I General Considerations and Methodologic Aspects Part II Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Reports Part III Social Disparities in Cancer Incidence and Survival Mechanisms Part IV Towards an Evidence Based Policy for Tackling Social Inequalities in Cancer Social Environment and Cancer in Europe Towards an Evidence Based Public Health Policy is a unique resource that presents up to date methods for analysing quantitative data It focusses on inequalities in cancer incidence and survival within the wider framework of inequalities in health This book will be an essential reference for policy makers researchers public health professionals social scientists and oncologists Social Inequities in Cancer Dana Hashim,Friederike Erdmann,Hajo Zeeb,2019-08-19 Social Inequities in Cancer is a compendium of articles that identify barriers and metrics on the topic of modifiable and unnecessary cancer inequalities Social inequities have long been recognised as a strong contributing factor in health and cancer inequalities for the past several decades Despite progress in cancer treatment cancer incidence mortality and survival vary markedly between and within countries Globalisation greater life expectancy emerging analytical technologies and the scalability of big data have revolutionized the vantage point from which social inequities can be studied The focus of these articles is inequalities as they relate to cancer with the inequalities ranging from the community to the global scale Disclaimer Where authors are identified as personnel of the International Agency for Research on Cancer World Health Organization the authors alone are responsible for the views expressed in this article and they do not necessarily represent the decisions policy or views of the International Agency for Research on Cancer World Health Organization Structural Inequalities and Health Outcomes for Chronic Disease Leonard E. Egede,2025-05-23 Structural Inequalities and Health Outcomes for Chronic Disease provides a conceptual framework for understanding existing evidence and guides the research around promising interventions and policies In addition it demonstrates how structural inequalities impact health and presents ways the healthcare system can participate in the solution The book covers major chronic diseases and the special populations impacted by structural inequalities Those working and studying public health medicine nursing pharmacology will find this work of interest as well as diversity and disparity scholars and health policymakers Presents the concepts underlying the emerging field of structural inequalities Provides examples of the influence of structural inequality on chronic disease and special populations Identifies the path forward and how to engage in changing structural inequalities Social Inequalities in Cancer Survival Øystein Kravdal,Universitetet i Oslo. Andersen, Marie Louise Tørring, 2023-04-14 Cancer Entangled explores the shifts that took place in Denmark around the millennium when health promoters set out to minimize delays in cancer diagnoses in hope of improving cancer survival. The authors suggest a temporal reframing of cancer control that emphasizes the importance of focusing on how people, potential patients as well as health care professionals, experience and anticipate cancer before a diagnosis or a prediction has been made. This argument compellingly challenges and augments anthropological work on cancer control that has privileged attention to the productive role of science and technology and to life with cancer or cancer risk. By offering rich ethnographic insights into the introduction of the first cancer vaccine, cancer signs and symptoms, public discourses on delays, social class and care seeking, cancer suspicion in the clinic as well as the work on fast track referral, the book convincingly situates cancer control in an ethical register involving attention to acceleration and time, showing how cancer waiting times become an index of the state of the nation.

Cancer Prevention: The Causes and Prevention of Cancer — Volume 1 Graham A. Colditz, D.J. Hunter, 2006-04-11 This Cancer Prevention book series aims to complement the research reported in the journal Cancer Causes and Control. Volumes in this series will summarize the state of the science from causes to prevention of cancer. The scope will be international. The past 20 years has seen an explosion of epidemiologic material on the causes of cancer. Examples include the growing number of studies of physical activity and colon cancer which have emerged and the numerous studies of components of diet such as alcohol and the risk of specific cancers. Major shifts in resource allocation now focus on translation of this new knowledge to actual cancer prevention programs. Researchers, practicing clinicians and those who write and implement public health policy need this information summarized in an easily accessible format. The abundance of knowledge, increasing understanding of how to communicate risk of cancer to the public and greater public awareness of cancer make the coming years ones in which we will see many new attempts at widespread cancer prevention programs. For example, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention launched a national colon cancer awareness campaign in early 1999.

Staying Alive, Third Edition: Critical Perspectives on Health, Illness, and Health Care Dennis Raphael, Toba Bryant, Marcia Rioux, 2019-12-13 This new edition of Staying Alive provides readers with a fresh perspective on health, health care and illness in Canada and abroad. Grounded in a human rights approach to health, this edited collection includes chapters on the social construction of illness and disability, social determinants of health and current critical issues in the field. The third edition has been thoroughly updated and includes recent national and international developments in health care with current world statistics and an emphasis on austerity related changes and their effects on health and health care systems. It includes chapters on pharmaceutical policy, social class, women's health and the impact of economic forces such as globalization and privatization in health care.

Inequities and Quality of Life in Argentina Juan Pablo Celemin, Guillermo Velázquez, 2022-03-16 The basis of this proposal is the study of quality of life from an interdisciplinary perspective. This volume presents a set of contributions from different sciences that analyse the quality of life in Argentina The contributions come from the social disciplines Geography Economics Demography History and from the field of health Nutrition Medicine Psychology as well as the applied sciences Statistics Applied Mathematics The purpose is to present various dimensions related to the well being of the population particularly in relation to poverty human development health nutrition and morbidity Although there are works from different sciences associated with the object of study they all have a geographic component based on cartography Consequently the importance of geography is highlighted as the territorial base allows for the study quality of life from a unique perspective where the map emerges as a fundamental descriptive tool Such an approach is useful to diagnose the quality of life and its uneven spatial distribution either through index or different associated variables Thus the maps are fundamental to study the territorial configuration of the quality of life at the different scales of analysis showing spatial inequalities and the areas where it is necessary to take measures to improve the population s living conditions

Outcome Prediction in Cancer Azzam F.G. Taktak,Anthony C.

Fisher,2006-11-28 This book is organized into 4 sections each looking at the question of outcome prediction in cancer from a different angle The first section describes the clinical problem and some of the predicaments that clinicians face in dealing with cancer Amongst issues discussed in this section are the TNM staging accepted methods for survival analysis and competing risks The second section describes the biological and genetic markers and the role of bioinformatics Understanding of the genetic and environmental basis of cancers will help in identifying high risk populations and developing effective prevention and early detection strategies The third section provides technical details of mathematical analysis behind survival prediction backed up by examples from various types of cancers The fourth section describes a number of machine learning methods which have been applied to decision support in cancer The final section describes how information is shared within the scientific and medical communities and with the general population using information technology and the World Wide Web Applications cover 8 types of cancer including brain eye mouth head and neck breast lungs colon and prostate Include contributions from authors in 5 different disciplines Provides a valuable educational tool for medical informatics
