Social Studies Content for Elementary and Middle School Teachers Penelope Joan Fritzer, 2002 We live in a world where our mobile devices have become extensions of ourselves We depend on them for instant connections to entertainment social media news and deals The phone has become our ticket loyalty card and catchall wallet Networks are faster phones are smarter and the mobile shopper is ready to spend money now What can a business do to maximize the mobile buying power of the new impulse consumer Gary Schwartz has written a groundbreaking book that outlines the history of the mobile industry and shows just how businesses can build up their mobile platforms to maximize online sales He ll explain How to minimize barriers between the shopper and a sale How marketers can connect and more important reconnect with loyal shoppers The technology available now and what s coming soon and how to pick a solution that will deliver results But like Blink or Freakonomics this isn t just a book for businesses It s also an eye opening look into the ways our economy is changing every second of every day Gary Schwartz analyzes a phenomenon that s modifying people s actions and challenges our assumptions about our behavior as consumers Anyone interested in the ways our behavior as shoppers is changing and what we can do to better harness this opportunity will find this book to be essential reading Content Matters Leif

Fearn, Eric Fearn, 2013-06-26 A critical question in social studies education is not whether teachers develop and teach units of study but what is in the units of study teachers develop and teach Curricular planning and instruction must focus on what we teach in the social studies classroom It is not uncommon for students to experience fine units about the westward movement and exit the fifth grade with little or no geographic literacy Most students leave middle school grades unable to name even one person who made a difference in the history of Indian people in the United States After three to five years of history classes high school students routinely self report that history is boring And it is the rare middle school graduate who knows how to use a free enterprise economy for his or her benefit This book explains the content of nine areas in social studies If teachers know what history biographical studies and the United States Constitution mean for instruction they can increase the probability of better focused content in their social studies instruction Content Matters Leif Fearn, Eric Fearn, 2013-06-26 A critical question in social studies education is not whether teachers develop and teach units of study but what is in the units of study teachers develop and teach Curricular planning and instruction must focus on what we teach in the social studies classroom It is not uncommon for students to experience fine units about the westward movement and exit the fifth grade with little or no geographic literacy Most students leave middle school grades unable to name even one person who made a difference in the history of Indian people in the United States After three to five years of history classes high school students routinely self report that history is boring And it is the rare middle school graduate who knows how to use a free enterprise economy for his or her benefit This book explains the content of nine areas in social studies If teachers know what history biographical studies and the United States Constitution mean for instruction they can increase the probability of
