Sexual Orientation and Gender Expression in Social Work Practice Deana F. Morrow, Lori Messinger, 2006-04-02 Al Jazeera and other satellite television stations have transformed Arab politics over the last decade By shattering state control over information and giving a platform to long stifled voices these new Arab media have challenged the status quo by encouraging open debate about Iraq Palestine Islamism Arab identity and other vital political and social issues These public arguments have redefined what it means to be Arab and reshaped the realm of political possibility As Marc Lynch shows the days of monolithic Arab opinion are over How Arab governments and the United States engage this newly confident and influential public sphere will profoundly shape the future of the Arab world Marc Lynch draws on interviews conducted in the Middle East and analyses of Arab satellite television programs op ed pages and public opinion polls to examine the nature evolution and influence of the new Arab public sphere Lynch who pays close attention to what is actually being said and talked about in the Arab world takes the contentious issue of Iraq which has divided Arabs like no other issue to show how the media revolutionized the formation and expression of public opinion He presents detailed discussions of Arab arguments about sanctions and the 2003 British and American invasion and occupation of Iraq While Arabs strongly disagreed about Saddam s regime they increasingly saw the effects of sanctions as a potent symbol of the suffering of all Arabs Anger and despair over these sanctions shaped Arab views of America their governments and themselves Lynch also suggests how the United States can develop and improve its engagement with the Arab public sphere He argues that the United States should move beyond treating the Arab public sphere as either an enemy to be defeated or an object to be manipulated via public relations Instead of wasting vast sums of money on a satellite television station nobody watches the United States should enter the public sphere as it really exists

SOCIAL WORK IN JUVENILE AND CRIMINAL JUSTICE SYSTEMS (4th Ed.) David W. Springer, Albert R. Roberts, 2017-05-16

Social Work in Juvenile and Criminal Justice Systems sets the standard of care for mental health treatment and the delivery of social services to crime victims, juvenile and adult offenders and their families. The chapters, all authored by experts in the field and all committed to the mission of social justice, are written with the clear understanding that we cannot study criminal justice in a vacuum. Therefore, a major focus of the book is on the renewed, growing sense of the profession's obligation to social justice. Each chapter interconnects with the various components of juvenile and criminal justice. Another prominent aspect of the book is that it is strength-based. It views those involved in the criminal and juvenile justice systems as individuals rather than inmates or criminals, each with unique positive talents and abilities. The book is divided into four sections. The first section discusses forensic social work, including crime and delinquency theories, trends, and ethical issues. The second section prepares social workers for practice in correctional institutions and explores crisis intervention with victims of violence, reentry of adult offenders in society, and aging in prison. The third section covers assessment and intervention in child sexual abuse, mental health, and substance abuse, interpersonal violence, and prevention, child welfare, and juvenile justice. The final section presents an overview on social work in the twenty-first century, which includes restorative justice and the justice system, new ways of delivering justice, domestic violence, neighborhood revitalization, race and ethnicity, and social work practice with LGBTQ offenders. This book will be the best single source on social work in criminal justice settings and will prove to be an invaluable resource for the many professionals who have responsibility for formulating and carrying out the mandates of the criminal justice system.
