Civil Aeronautics Administration,1950 Instructor ,1996-08 John Dewey and the Dawn of Social Studies C. Gregg Jorgensen,2012-09-01 Founding documents namely the 1916 Report on Social Studies is the focus of John Dewey and the Dawn of Social Studies Unraveling Conflicting Interpretations of the 1916 Report which examines the Report in order to determine how it has been interpreted and regarded over time The underlying question involved is Which interpretation or interpretations most embodies the intent goals and purpose of the 1916 Committee Key members of the 1916 committee have been identified for extended research and analysis One additional individual frequently quoted throughout the Report John Dewey received special consideration owing to his stature and influence in the U S and throughout the world The wide variety of interpretations was examined within an organizational framework utilized to discuss and analyze the broad spectrum of interpretations that exist This examination encompassed the existing theories the meaning and intent of the

1916 committee as well as the social and political aspects of the era The overarching intent of founding documents in this case the 1916 Report is to make sense of the various scholarly interpretations and offer insights as to whether or not a consensus of opinion among scholars existed Like all important founding documents whose authors have long since passed through the veil of history but whose work continues to influence we as scholars social studies and history educators and curriculum and instruction researchers want to know whose ideas are at the forefront of social studies one of the most contested academic fields of study in America

(Re)Constructing Memory: Education, Identity, and Conflict Michelle J. Bellino, James H. Williams, 2017-02-08 How do schools protect young people and call on the youngest citizens to respond to violent conflict and division operating outside and sometimes within school walls What kinds of curricular representations of conflict contribute to the construction of national identity and what kinds of encounters challenge presumed boundaries between us and them Through contemporary and historical case studies drawn from Cambodia Egypt Northern Ireland Peru and Rwanda among others this collection explores how societies experiencing armed conflict and its aftermath imagine education as a space for forging collective identity peace and stability and national citizenship In some contexts the erasure of conflict and the homogenization of difference are central to shaping national identities and attitudes In other cases collective memory of conflict functions as a central organizing frame through which citizenship and national identity are re constructed with embedded messages about who belongs and how social belonging is achieved The essays in this volume illuminate varied and complex inter relationships between education conflict and national identity while accounting for ways in which policymakers teachers youth and community members replicate resist and transform conflict through everyday interactions in educational spaces
