block possible Soviet expansion by mobilizing European democracies the policy soon extended to some developing countries in Asia and Latin America In response the USSR gradually initiated development programs for newly independent nations in Asia and Africa In this context super power rivalry operated in the South to i expand spheres of influence and control ii guard Southern nations from the influence and incursions launched by the opposed camp iii stimulate indigenous development With few exceptions Southern nations provided little input to the definition and execution of North South dynamics during this period In the case of Africa and to some extent Asia the acquisition of independence was so recent and often sudden that there was little time to reflect on the kind of policies and measures needed to build balanced relations with the former mother country In Latin America the Monroe Doctrine had long insured that the region was a virtual captive of the US Aid for development was contingent on conformity to US political and economic interests The cognitive component of South North dealings strongly reflected the two above mentioned dispositions The relative lack of political experience in the South and the dearth of an organized and sizable intellectual academic community meant that there were few cognitive and human resources for undertaking careful study and analysis of the conditions and needs of development from a Southern perspective influential exceptions existed though such as Raul Prebisch in Latin America or Gandhi in India Social Research in Developing Countries Martin Bulmer, Donald P. Warwick, 1993 Delivers key information on social research methods in developing countries dealing with the particular problems of carrying out social surveys and censuses in the Third World

International Perspectives on Teacher Education Donald K. Sharpes, 2020-09-10 The preparation of suitably qualified teachers is vital for political social and economic growth in developing countries Some major problems have been caused by the enormous growth in primary enrolment and by the need to train more teachers without reducing standards exacerbated by the fact that in many cases the structure of teacher education is still in its formative stages However these problems can lead to innovative options and solutions Originally published in 1988 this book reports on research and practice in teacher education around the world It examines for example what happens to teacher education at times of great social change or political unrest as in South Africa or Cyprus how programmes in for example Nigeria or China approach minority education and how teachers are prepared for the teaching of indigenous populations such as the Saskatchewan Indians in Canada These examples of international teacher education practice are presented within a specific national regional and cultural context and provide important perspectives on the traditional views of how teachers are and should be prepared and professionally maintained The book will be of interest to all involved in teacher education adult education and curriculum design as well as to students of development studies
