The Cuban Revolution as Socialist Human Development Henry Veltmeyer, Mark Rushton, 2011-11-11 The book argues that the Cuban Revolution warrants a closer look as a model of socialist human development A re-reading of the Cuban Revolution from this angle engages unresolved issues in the theory of socialist humanism and the notion of human development popularized by the United Nations Development Programme i.e. predicated on capitalism UNDP economists and other agencies of international cooperation for development give a human face to a capitalist development process that is anything but humane Socialism in Cuba has taken a very different form socialist human development than it did elsewhere in the twentieth century The Cuban Revolution's unique characteristics enabled it to survive adverse conditions a near perfect storm that still threaten its evolution

Gender and the Self in Latin American Literature Emma Staniland, 2015-10-05 This book explores six texts from across Spanish America in which the coming of age story Bildungsroman offers a critique of gendered selfhood as experienced in the region's socio-cultural contexts Looking at a range of novels from the late twentieth century Staniland explores thematic concerns in terms of their role in elucidating a literary journey towards agency that is towards the articulation of a socially and personally viable female gendered identity mindful of both the hegemonic discourses that constrain it and the possibility of their deconstruction and reconfiguration Myth exile and the female body are the three central themes for understanding the personal social and political aims of the Post Boom women writers whose work is explored in this volume Isabel Allende Laura Esquivel Angeles Mastretta Sylvia Molloy Cristina Peri Rossi and Zoé Valdés Their adoption and adaptation of an originally eighteenth century and European literary genre is seen here to reshape the global canon as much as it works to reshape our understanding of gendered identities as socially constructed culturally contingent and open ended

Cuba's Forgotten Decade Anna Clayfield, Emily J. Kirk, Isabel Story, 2018-08-24 The 1970s have largely been overlooked in scholarly studies of the Cuban Revolution or at the very least dismissed simply as a period of Sovietization characterized by widespread bureaucratization institutionalization and adherence to Soviet orthodoxy Consequently scant research exists that examines the major changes that took place across the decade and their role in determining the course of the Revolution This book provides for the first time a comprehensive assessment of the 1970s which challenges prevailing interpretations Drawing from multidisciplinary perspectives and exploring a range of areas including politics international relations culture education and healthcare its contributing authors demonstrate that the decade was a time of intense transformation which proved pivotal to the development of the Revolution Indeed many of the ideas approaches policies and legislation developed and tested during the 1970s maintain a very visible legacy in contemporary Cuba In highlighting the complexity of the 1970s this volume ultimately aims to contribute to a greater understanding of the Cuban Revolution and how it chooses to face the challenges of the twenty first century

How Not to be Governed Jimmy Casas Klausen, James R. Martel, 2011-01-01
How Not to Be Governed explores the contemporary debates and questions concerning anarchism in our own time The authors address the political failures of earlier practices of anarchism and the claim that anarchism is impracticable by examining the anarchisms that have been theorized and practiced in the midst of these supposed failures The authors revive the possibility of anarchism even as they examine it with a critical lens Rather than breaking with prior anarchist practices this volume reveals the central values and tactics of anarchism that remain with us practiced even in the most unlikely and impossible contexts

Creating the New Man Yinghong Cheng, 2008-12-31
The idea of eliminating undesirable traits from human temperament to create a new man has been part of moral and political thinking worldwide for millennia During the Enlightenment European philosophers sought to construct an ideological framework for reshaping human nature But it was only among the communist regimes of the twentieth century that such ideas were actually put into practice on a nationwide scale In this book Yinghong Cheng examines three culturally diverse sociopolitical experiments the Soviet Union under Lenin and Stalin China under Mao and Cuba under Castro in an attempt to better understand the origins and development of the new man The book s fundamental concerns are how these communist revolutions strove to create a new morally and psychologically superior human being and how this task paralleled efforts to create a superior society To these ends it addresses a number of questions What are the intellectual roots of the new man concept How was this idealistic and utopian goal linked to specific political and economic programs How do the policies of these particular regimes based as they are on universal communist ideology reflect national and cultural traditions Cheng begins by exploring the origins of the idea of human perfectibility during the Enlightenment His discussion moves to other European intellectual movements and then to the creation of the Soviet Man the first communist new man in world history Subsequent chapters examine China s experiment with human nature starting with the nationalistic debate about a new national character at the turn of the twentieth century and Cuban perceptions of the new man and his role in propelling the revolution from a nationalist to a socialist and finally a communist movement The last chapter considers the global influence of the Soviet Chinese and Cuban experiments Creating the New Man contributes greatly to our understanding of how three very different countries and their leaders carried out problematic and controversial visions and programs It will be of special interest to students and scholars of world history and intellectual social and revolutionary history and also development studies and philosophy
