Encyclopedia of African Cultural Heritage in North America Mwalimu J. Shujaa, Kenya J. Shujaa, 2015-07-13 The Encyclopedia of African Cultural Heritage in North America provides an accessible ready reference on the retention and continuity of African culture within the United States Our conceptual framework holds first that culture is a form of self knowledge and knowledge about self in the world as transmitted from one person to another Second that African people continuously create their own cultural history as they move through time and space Third that African descended people living outside of Africa are also contributors to and participate in the creation of African cultural history Entries focus on illuminating Africanisms cultural retentions traceable to an African origin and cultural continuities ongoing practices and processes through which African culture continues to be created and formed Thus the focus is more culturally specific and less concerned with the broader transatlantic demographic political and geographic issues that are the focus of similar recent reference works We also focus less on biographies of individuals and political and economic ties and more on processes and manifestations of African cultural heritage and continuity FEATURES A two volume A to Z work available in a choice of print or electronic formats 350 signed entries each concluding with Cross references and Further Readings 150 figures and photos Front matter consisting of an Introduction and a Reader's Guide organizing entries thematically to more easily guide users to related entries Signed articles concluding with cross references Africanisms in American Culture, Second Edition Joseph E. The World of The Salt Marsh Charles Seabrook, 2013-05-01 The World of the Salt Marsh is a wide ranging exploration of the southeastern coast its natural history its people and their way of life and the historic and ongoing threats to its ecological survival Focusing on areas from Cape Hatteras North Carolina to Cape Canaveral Florida Charles Seabrook examines the ecological importance of the salt marsh calling it a biological factory without equal Twice daily tides carry in a supply of nutrients that nourish vast meadows of spartina Spartina alterniflora a crucial habitat for creatures ranging from tiny marine invertebrates to wading birds The meadows provide vital nurseries for 80 percent of the seafood species including oysters crabs shrimp and a variety of finfish and they are invaluable for storm protection erosion prevention and pollution filtration Seabrook is also concerned with the plight of the people who make their living from the coast s bounty and who carry on its unique culture Among them are Charlie Phillips a fishmonger whose livelihood is threatened by development in McIntosh County Georgia and Vera Manigault of Mount Pleasant South Carolina a basket maker of Gullah Geechee descent who says that the sweetgrass needed to make her culturally significant wares is becoming scarcer For all of the biodiversity and cultural history of the salt marshes many still view them as vast wastelands to be drained diked or improved for development into highways and subdivisions If people can better understand and appreciate these ecosystems Seabrook contends they are more likely to join the growing chorus of scientists conservationists fishermen and coastal visitors and residents calling for protection of these truly amazing places

Stigma and Culture J. Lorand Matory, 2015-12-02 In Stigma and Culture J Lorand Matory provocatively shows how ethnic identification in the United States and around the globe is a competitive and hierarchical process in which populations especially of historically stigmatized races seek status and income by dishonoring other stigmatized populations And there is no better place to see this than among the African American elite in academia where he explores the emergent ethnic identities of African and Caribbean immigrants and transmigrants Gullah Geechees Louisiana Creoles and even Native Americans of partly African ancestry Matory describes the competitive process that hierarchically structures their self definition as ethnic groups and the similar process by which middle class African Americans seek distinction from their impoverished compatriots Drawing on research at universities such as Howard Harvard and Duke and among their alumni networks he details how university life while facilitating individual upward mobility touting human equality and regaling cultural diversity also perpetuates the cultural standards that historically justified the dominance of some groups over others Combining his ethnographic findings with classic theoretical insights from Frantz Fanon, Fredrik Barth, Erving Goffman, Pierre Bourdieu and others alongside stories from his own life in academia. Matory sketches the university as an institution that particularly through the anthropological vocabulary of culture encourages the stigmatized to stratify their own. Enslaved Women in America Daina Ramey Berry Ph.D., Delezo A. Alford, 2012-06-12 This singular reference provides an authoritative account of the daily lives of enslaved women in the United States from colonial times to emancipation following the Civil War. Through essays, photos and primary source documents the female experience is explored and women are depicted as central rather than marginal figures in history. Slavery in the history of the United States continues to loom large in our national consciousness and the role of women in this dark chapter of the American past is largely under examined. This is the first encyclopedia to focus on the daily experiences and roles of female slaves in the United States from colonial times to official abolition provided by the 13th amendment to the Constitution in 1865. Enslaved Women in America: An Encyclopedia contains 100 entries written by a range of experts and covering all aspects of daily life. Topics include culture, family, health, labor, resistance and violence. Arranged alphabetically by entry, this unique look at history features life histories of lesser known African American women including Harriet Robinson Scott, the wife of Dred Scott, as well as more notable figures.
