Abstract

The coastal circulation of the Gulf of Lion has been studied over a ten year period with in situ, remote sensing and numerical data. Intrusions, eddies, transient structures and frontal jets can strongly influence water fluxes in and out of the gulf. Transport fluxes as well as horizontal and vertical diffusivities are being assessed with data from various in situ platforms. All these results bring new understanding on the influence of mesoscale processes on cross-shelf and interregional exchanges.

Keywords: Circulation experiments, Circulation models, Coastal processes, Gulf of Lion, Mesoscale phenomena

The circulation of the Gulf of Lion (GoL), northwestern Mediterranean Sea, is complex and highly variable [1]. It is strongly influenced by the Northern Current, generally considered to constitute a dynamical barrier along the shelf. Exchanges between the GoL and offshore waters are thought to be induced by processes associated with the Northern Current [2,3]. This paper focuses on mesoscale processes at the eastern and western sides of the GoL.

The coastal circulation of the GoL has been studied over a ten year period with in situ, remote sensing and numerical data. The present study includes in situ data acquired during SARHYGOL (2000-2001), GOLTS (2002-2005) and LATEX (2007-2011). A realistic 3D numerical model Symphonie is run from 2001 to 2010 at high resolution (1 km) [4].

On the eastern side of the gulf, during specific conditions, a vein of the Northern Current (up to 1/3 of its measured flux) can intrude on the shelf. On the western side, wind conditions can affect whether the current enters or exits the gulf [5]. During stratified summer conditions, elliptical, shallow, anticyclonic eddies are observed north of Cape Creus [6,7], following northwestern wind events [8]. Two different generation processes can create them [9,7]. Generally eddies are associated with water retention; but transient structures can also detach from them and rapidly exit the gulf [7].

an influence on interregional exchanges that can have strong impacts on biogeochemical and biological systems.
