

Social Policy Development

Community development workers are involved in policymaking at a number of levels. First, all community organisations have some sort of policy about how they operate. Second, at a higher level, community organisations and community development workers are influenced by government policies that frame what they do, such as policies about government-community partnerships or social policies, such as those concerned with social inclusion. Finally, community development workers can influence the policies of other organisations and institutions, such as business corporations, funding bodies and local, state and federal governments.

It is important for community development workers to understand the level, formality and purpose of a particular social policy. When analysing the development of social policy, some general questions can be asked:

- What is the issue or problem being addressed, and how is it constructed? Is it a problem of large numbers of people being unemployed, living in poverty or lacking satisfactory housing, for example?
- Who is seen to be responsible (or blamed) for these problems: the individuals themselves, their families, the education system or the social system itself?
- Is the policy based on strong, non-consultative intervention into society? Is it participatory? Is it based on a laissez-faire model that supports the status quo?
- Why and for whom is the social policy being formulated? Are politicians making a gesture to show that they are doing something about the problem? Is the policy being developed on social justice principles? Is it a cost-cutting exercise? Is it a repressive mechanism to ensure that the poor and disadvantaged are kept in line? Is it based on blaming the victims, as a punishment for those who are disadvantaged?

The question above should be considered by anyone who develops or analyses social policy. They are also ways in lobbying to maintain or change existing social policy, for it is necessary to understand the nature of social policy in order to have some influence on how it is developed.

Working with Local Government Units

The relationship between communities and local government should always be in the context on how communities can directly link with LGUS and is provided opportunities in participating its decision-making processes. One way of thinking about this issue is to identify different forms of relations between communities and local government councils. Table 1 offers a matrix for thinking about the types of relations with local government within the specific stages of project development.
