Social Skills And Health:

Social Skills and Mental Health (Psychology Revivals) Peter Trower, Bridget Bryant, Michael Argyle, 2013-12-16 In the 10 years or so prior to original publication in 1978 new theories and discoveries in the social sciences had given a scientific basis and new impetus to the development of social skills training as a form of therapy This book explores the progress made with this idea and gives practical guidance for therapists based on several years experience with the technique The book provides an account of the latest ideas at the time about the analysis of social behaviour non verbal communication social skill rules analysis of situations etc The different techniques for training and modifying social behaviour some old some very new are described and compared with detailed accounts There is a careful critical review of follow up studies of social skills training and other forms of social therapy on in patients out patients and volunteer subjects The second part of the book consists of a manual for assessing deficits and difficulties and for training in ten main areas of social deficiency such as observation listening speaking asserting and planning A rating scale questionnaire and user s booklet of training exercises is included The book should be of interest not only to psychiatric professionals psychiatrists clinical psychologists psychiatric nurses occupational therapists but to many others such as social and community workers teachers prison officers and lay people who may be interested in forming self help groups either on their own or with professional guidance

Social Skills for Mental Health Robert P. Sprafkin, N. Jane Gershaw, Arnold P. Goldstein, 1993 This practical guidebook is designed to help practitioners use proven techniques of structured learning to teach essential social skills that will help their clients function more effectively and independently at home at work and in group settings 27 specific topics are covered in detail and a transcript of an actual meeting is included

Teaching Social Skills to Youth with Mental Health Disorders Jennifer Resetar Volz, Tara Snyder, Michael Sterba, 2009 Research and experience show that children and adolescents who struggle with emotional behavioral and social problems do improve when they learn prosocial skills Social skill instruction therefore can be a vital component in the treatment planning for a child diagnosed with a mental health disorder Teaching Social Skills to Youth with Mental Health Disorders is a guide for therapists counselors psychologists educators and other practitioners trying to help these youth get better

Social Skills and Health (Psychology Revivals) Michael Argyle, 2013-11-26 The efficiency of an organization and the well being of those working within it are often dependent to a large extent on the social skills deployed by certain key personnel The analysis of these skills and the training of people in their use had reached a stage of considerable sophistication Originally published in 1981 this volume edited by the foremost authority in the field presents a wealth of ideas and information on how best to employ social skills training in health and welfare agencies that are still relevant today The introduction describes the processes of social interaction in which social skills consist introduces the social skill model and shows how social competence is assessed and how the most effective social skills are discovered Subsequent chapters deal with the social skills required of nurses doctors psychotherapists social workers and those charged with child rearing There is a chapter which gives an account of the social skill problems of mental patients and the extent to which social inadequacy is responsible for their other problems The final chapter discusses the main techniques of social skills training and reviews their success in the light of follow up studies The book will be of historical value to all those concerned with the training and performance of personnel within the health related professions and to those with an academic interest in the psychology of human relations
