Towards a Global Music History Mark Hilleh, 2018-12-07 How do we explain the globalized musical world in which we find ourselves in the early 21st century and how did we arrive here This extraordinary book outlines an understanding of the human musical story as an intercultural and ultimately a transcultural one with travel and trade as the primary conditions and catalysts for the ongoing development of musical styles Starting with the cultural and civilizational precedents that gave rise to the first global trading and travel network in both directions across the Afro Eurasian Old World Web in the form of the Silk Road the book proceeds to the rise of al Andalus and its influence on Europe through the Iberian peninsula before considering the fusion of European African and indigenous musics that emerged in the Americas between c1500 1920 as part of Atlantic culture and the New World Web as well as the concurrent acceleration of globalism in music through European empires and exoticism The book concludes by examining the musical implications of our current Age of Instantaneous Exchange that technology permits and by revisiting the question of interculturality and transculturality in music Becoming a Garamut Player in Baluan, Papua New Guinea Tony Lewis, 2018-04-19 The garamut is a log idiophone that is found in many of the coastal and island areas of Papua New Guinea. The instrument's primary use is as a speech surrogate and in some regions the garamut is also used in large ensembles to play complex music for dancing. In Baluan Island within the Manus Province, this style of garamut playing is comparatively highly developed. This book follows the author's processes and methods in learning to play the music of the garamut to the level at which he became accepted as a garamut player by the people of Baluan. Lewis argues that analysis is essential in learning to play the rapid tempi and complex rhythms of Baluan garamut music in a cultural context where there is no formal teaching process for the music. The transcription and analysis of the Baluan garamut repertoire is the centrepiece of this study, reflecting the cognitive structures of the learning process and revealing the inner workings of the music's complexity as well as a striking beauty of form and structure. The book concludes with reflections on the process of a cultural outsider becoming a garamut player in Baluan and on the role of musical analysis in that process, on the ethnomusicologist's role in transmission of the music and on the nature of continuity and change in a musical society such as Baluan.

Many Voices Henry Johnson, 2010-04-16 This collection of fourteen essays provides a starting point to re-think music and national identity in Aotearoa New Zealand. The papers offer various perspectives on the interconnections between music and identity while providing case studies on diverse topics including performance, composition, and musical styles. Based on a conference held at the University of Otago, the book covers three broad themes: Cultural Diversity, Popular Culture and Education, and High Art. Within any nation, individuals might have a cultural identity that is related to notions of being or becoming, or they may live transcultural lives. One consequence of the nation state is that notions of national identity are often challenged and continually changing, often brought about by social and cultural flows such as those connected with music. The intention of this book is to open up critical discourse on the many musics of Aotearoa New Zealand. The papers represent a few sounds of a diverse nation and sounds that do much to represent place very often Aotearoa New Zealand and beyond. The papers cannot cover everything, but what they can offer will hopefully open up further research on the many voices of those who call Aotearoa New Zealand home.

Ellerich, 2024-01-05 Citizens of Vanuatu see Vanuatu perceive stringband music as a marker of national identity, an indicator of their cultural stylistic and musical heritage.
