

The equilateral geometry of Musical Notes

1,132 ft/s = the speed of sound = 345 m/s as the frequency of each note increases the wavelength of each equilateral quantum decreases

as the frequency of each note decreases
increases

Just as in physics equilateral geometries can colour mapped to any musical frequency (or note) and all 12 notes of a single octave can be related to a scalar equilateral field [where two or more notes are played at once armonic differentials are created aka Fourier patterns revealing a unique geometry created by the inner relationships of individual notes to each other within any chord]
