The Golden Years of Trains, 1830-1920 Harry Weaver, 1977      The Golden Years of Trains, 1830-1920 Peter Michael Kalla-Bishop, 1977      The Routledge Handbook of Technology, Crime and Justice M. R. McGuire, Thomas Holt, 2017-02-24

Technology has become increasingly important to both the function and our understanding of the justice process. Many forms of criminal behaviour are highly dependent upon technology and crime control has become a predominantly technologically driven process, one where traditional technological aids such as fingerprinting or blood sample analysis are supplemented by a dizzying array of tools and techniques including surveillance devices and DNA profiling. This book offers the first comprehensive and holistic overview of global research on technology crime and justice. It is divided into five parts, each corresponding with the key stages of the offending and justice process. Part I addresses the current conceptual understanding of technology within academia and the criminal justice system. Part II gives a comprehensive overview of the current relations between technology and criminal behaviour. Part III explores the current technologies within crime control and the ways in which technology underpins contemporary formal and informal social control. Part IV sets out some of the fundamental impacts technology is now having upon the judicial process. Part V reveals the emerging technologies for crime control and justice and considers the extent to which new technology can be effectively regulated. This landmark collection will be essential reading for academics, students and theorists within criminology, sociology, law, engineering and technology and computer science, as well as practitioners and professionals working within and around the criminal justice system.

Problems of the Victorian Age as reflected in the poetry of Matthew Arnold, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, and Alfred Tennyson Antje Wulff, 2008-11-19 Examination Thesis from the year 2003 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Comparative Literature grade 1.0 University of Trier language English abstract

The Victorian age was a time of change and of a change as far reaching and comprehensive as it had hardly ever been encountered before. This change rang in Britain's heyday; it led the country straight into modernity and transformed virtually every area of life. On the Victorians, it had a twofold effect. Regarding themselves as the vanguard of progress, they celebrated their achievements with an almost evangelical optimism, while at the same time the loss of traditional values and beliefs triggered new fears and insecurities as well. This thesis tries to approach the ambivalent nature of the age by studying the poetry of Matthew Arnold, Elizabeth Barrett Browning and the poet laureate Alfred Lord Tennyson. Though naturally not intended as a compendium of all the difficulties of Victorian Britain, it traces the predominant predicaments of the age, namely socio-economic and political issues and the effects of progress on the inner consciousness of the individual human being, and analyses the way they are presented by the three poets, be it overtly or covertly. An interdisciplinary approach is taken where it seems appropriate, although generally the poems themselves provide the basis for comment and analysis. They are individual but also exemplary reactions to the historical environment from which they emerged and as such they can contribute to a better understanding of both this environment and the interrelation between man and the forces of history in general
