Directed energy missile defense in space, 1984 This Background Paper describes and assesses current concepts for directed energy ballistic missile defense in space Its purpose is to provide Members of Congress their staffs and the public with a readable introduction to the so called Star Wars technologies that some suggest might form the basis of a future nationwide defense against Soviet nuclear ballistic missiles Since these technologies are a relatively new focus for U S missile defense efforts little information about them has been readily available outside the expert community Directed energy or beam weapons comprise chemical lasers excimer and free electron lasers nuclear bomb powered x ray lasers neutral and charged particle beams kinetic energy weapons and microwave weapons In addition to describing these devices this Background Paper assesses the prospects for fashioning from such weapons robust and reliable wartime defense system resistant to Soviet countermeasures The assessment distinguishes the prospects for perfect or near perfect protection of U S cities and population from the prospects that technology will achieve a modest less than perfect level of performance that will nonetheless be seen by some experts as having strategic value Though the focus is technical the Paper also discusses but does not assess in detail the strategic and arms control implications of a major U S move to develop and deploy ballistic missile defense BMD
