

In Dialogue with the More-than-Human: Affective Prefiguration in Encounters with Others

● Ann Light, University of Sussex and Malmö University

Insights

- To effect urgent change, we require different capacities for feeling as well as different feelings.
- Affective prefiguration means giving experience in the present of what else might be emotionally and relationally possible.
- Dialoguing with the more-than-human broadens our repertoire of feeling and supports transformations toward more just and sustainable futures.

I have been talking about practices that give people the chance to feel differently. Not only to feel different, but to feel relationships that are not ubiquitously available at present. I call this affective prefiguration.

We have seen the idea of prefiguration enter design in relation to prefigurative politics. Carl DiSalvo championed it [1] and there is inspiring work from, for instance, Mariam Assad and Alix Gerber. In its political form, prefiguration is commonly understood as enacting the change one wants to see. Much of this thinking has concerned itself with alternative and progressive organizational structures—new economics, different legal systems, regenerative care facilities—emerging in niches and created as part of social movements determined to do better. Sometimes the new structures become absorbed; others persist as alternatives; some exist only as long as needed to make a point. These structures and the imaginaries that accompany them are what Davina Cooper has called everyday utopias [2]. They leave a legacy, giving us something to aspire to; a direction of travel. In ways akin to utopian science fiction, they present us with a hopeful but practical vision. Even those that fail to take hold signal how difference could arise. David Graeber and David Wengrow's colossal book The Dawn of Everything [3] presents, in this spirit, the diverse ways the anthropologist/archaeologist authors

The Rhetoric of Cultural Dialogue Jeffrey S. Librett, 2000 In this groundbreaking work the author effects the first extended rhetorical philosophical reading of the historically problematic relationship between Jews and Germans based on an analysis of texts from the Enlightenment through Modernism by Moses Mendelssohn Friedrich and Dorothea Schlegel Karl Marx Richard Wagner Friedrich Nietzsche and Sigmund Freud The theoretical underpinning of the work lies in the author's rereading in terms of contemporary rhetorical theory of the medieval tradition known as figural representation which defines the Jewish Christian relation as that between the dead prefigural letter and the living fulfilled spirit After arguing that the German Enlightenment ultimately plays out the historical phantasm of a necessary Judaization of Protestant rationality the author shows that German Early Romanticism consists fundamentally in the attempt to solve the aporias raised by this impossible confrontation between Protestant spirit and Jewish letter In readings of Dorothea Schlegel Mendelssohn's daughter and her husband Friedrich Schlegel the author provides a new interpretation of the Neo Catholic turn of later German Romanticism Further he situates the proleptic end and reversal of the project of Jewish emancipation in the two extreme versions of late nineteenth century anti Judaism those of Marx and Wagner here viewed as binary concretizations of a specifically post Romantic paganized Protestantism Finally the author argues that twentieth century Modernism as represented by Nietzsche and Freud renews if in a multiply ironic displacement the secret Judaizing tendencies of the Enlightenment Fascism and Communism both denigrate this Modernism which affirms the letter of language as quasi synonymous with the force of temporality or anticipatory repetition that disrupts all claims to the full presence of spirit The book ends with a note on recent debates about Holocaust memory

A Political Psychology Approach to Militancy and Prefigurative Activism André Luis Leite de Figueirêdo Sales, 2023-03-06 This book frames a series of protests occurred in Brazil from 2013 to 2016 as exemplary cases of global trends in contentious politics to analyze the tension between two forms of collective action the militant militante and the prefigurative activist ativista Building on sociology political science and psychology it explores the relationship between protestors activities and conceptions of political participation with their subjectivity and agency The protest cycle triggered by the June 2013 events in Brazil gave strength and popularity to repertoires and strategies of collective action uncommon and innovative Those praxes defied

Scientific Conceptualization and Ontological Difference Dimitri Ginev, 2019-07-22 Ginev works out a conception of the constitution of scientific objects in terms of hermeneutic phenomenology Recently there has been a revival of interest in hermeneutic theories of scientific inquiry The present study is furthering this interest by shifting the focus from interpretive methods and procedures to the kinds of reflexivity operating in scientific conceptualization According to the book s central thesis a reflexive conceptualization enables one to take into consideration the role which the ontic ontological difference plays in the constitution of scientific objects The book argues for this thesis by analyzing the formation of objects of inquiry in a range of scientific domains stretching from highly formalized domains where the quest for objects identities is carried out in terms of objects emancipation from structures to linguistic and historiographic programs that avoid procedural objectification in their modes of conceptualization The book sets up a new strategy for the dialogue between the theories of scientific inquiry and

A History of Preaching Volume 2 Rev. O.C. Edwards JR., 2016-04-25 A History of Preaching brings together narrative history and primary sources to provide the most comprehensive guide available to the story of the church's ministry of proclamation. Bringing together an impressive array of familiar and lesser known figures, Edwards paints a detailed, compelling picture of what it has meant to preach the gospel. Pastors, scholars, and students of homiletics will find here many opportunities to enrich their understanding and practice of preaching. Ecumenical in scope, fair-minded in presentation, appreciative of the contributions that all the branches of the church have made to the story of what it means to develop, deliver, and listen to a sermon, A History of Preaching will be the definitive resource for anyone who wishes to preach or to understand preaching's role in living out the gospel. Volume 2 contains primary source material on preaching drawn from the entire scope of the church's twenty centuries. The author has written an introduction to each selection, placing it in its historical context and pointing to its particular contribution. Each chapter in Volume 2 is geared to its companion chapter in Volume 1's narrative history. Volume 1, available separately as 9781501833779, contains Edwards's magisterial retelling of the story of Christian preaching's development from its Hellenistic and Jewish roots in the New Testament through the late twentieth century's discontent with outdated forms and emphasis on new modes of preaching such as narrative. Along the way, the author introduces us to the complexities and contributions of preachers both with whom we are already acquainted and to whom we will be introduced here for the first time: Origen, Chrysostom, Augustine, Bernard, Aquinas, Luther, Calvin, Wesley, Edwards, Rauschenbusch, Barth; all of their distinctive contributions receive careful attention. Yet lesser known figures and developments also appear: from the ninth century reform of preaching championed by Hrabanus Maurus to the reference books developed in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries by the mendicant orders to assist their members preaching; to Howell Harris and Daniel Rowlands, preachers of the eighteenth century Welsh revival; to Helen Kenyon speaking as a layperson at the 1950 Yale Beecher lectures about the view of preaching from the pew. This work is expected to be the standard text on preaching for the next 30 years, says Ann K. Riggs, who staffs the NCC's Faith and Order Commission. Author Edwards, former professor of preaching at Seabury Western Theological Seminary, is co-moderator of the commission, which studies church uniting and church dividing issues. A History of Preaching is ecumenical in scope and will be relevant in all our churches; we all participate in this field, says Riggs. From EcuLink, Number 65, Winter 2004-2005, published by the National Council of Churches.
