The Pride of Palomar Peter Kyne, 2021-10-04 The pride of palomar From Peter B Kyne The Pride of Palomar - Peter B. Kyne Peter B. Kyne, 2009-12-30 A passage from the book I have at last finished writing The Pride of Palomar It isn t at all what I wanted it to be it isn t at all what I planned it to be but it does contain something of what you and I both feel something of what you wanted me to put into it Indeed I shall always wish to think that it contains just a few faint little echoes of the spirit of that old California that was fast vanishing when I first disturbed the quiet of the Mission Dolores with infantile shrieks when you first gazed upon the redwood studded hills of Sonoma County You adventured with me in my quest for local color for The Valley of the Giants in Northern California you performed a similar service in Southern California last summer and unearthed for me more local color more touches of tender sentiment than I could use Therefore The Pride of Palomar is peculiarly your book On a day a year ago when the story was still so vague I could scarcely find words in which to sketch for you an outline of the novel I purposed writing you said It will be a good story I m sold on it already To you the hacienda of a Rancho Palomar will always bring delightful recollections of the gracious hospitality of Se or Cave Coutts sitting at the head of that table hewed in the forties Little did Se or Coutts realize that he the last of the dons in San Diego County was to furnish copy for my novel that his pride of ancestry both American and Castilian his love for his ancestral hacienda at the Rancho Guajome and his old fashioned garden with the great Bougainvillea in flower were the ingredients necessary to the production of what I trust will be a book with a mission
