Seasons Such As These Cynthia J. Bogard, 2003 Homelessness had become a social problem that was primarily not about solving the nation's housing crisis The pressing question becomes How and why did homelessness become the social problem in its own right one that was only tangentially related to the problem of inappropriate or insufficient housing Why when people demanded that something be done about homelessness did they get specific policies and unintended outcomes Cynthia Bogard is not content with the shorthand answers that rested on bias and ideology such as conservative politics bred conservative policies or American individualism precludes government investment in housing This did not explain homelessness sufficiently especially given all the advocacy and research that had occurred in the 1980s and 1990s Examining these claimsmaking activities as constructionists call them however is a daunting task because the activities engaged in by people in the attempt to persuade others are fluid subtle and complicated as are the responses to these social actions This raised a second set of issues that the author is concerned with How can we adequately represent and sociologically examine this very complicated human activity of social problems construction Who does the construction and to what effect Bogard's answer to these questions is a book that can be read in two ways and on multiple levels For those who are interested in the story of the career of homelessness as a social problem in America s two national cities the book should be read from the beginning through the conclusion as a straight narrative The technical matter in the appendix can be ignored But for those readers with an interest in social problems constructionism however this book is meant as a cook book of sorts Each chapter emphasizes a feature of constructionism such as an important group of claims makers or an important aspect of the claims making process The work highlights a major feature in advanced societies the intersection of interests and claims Social constructions may be real but they are comprised of no less real social interests The work marks a real departure and advance over the original formulations of construction theory in social research Cynthia J Bogard is associate professor of sociology at Hofstra University

The Criminology of Edwin Sutherland Mark S. Gaylord, 2020-10-14 Edwin Sutherland is the acknowledged father of American criminology This is the first full length analysis of his work and his person Unlike the European schools of criminology which sought to locate deviant behaviour within the deep structures of the economy Sutherland eschewed such explanations in favour of proximate and observable causes He located the sources of crime in the association and interaction of specific groups of people For Sutherland crime as a way of life results from an individual s attachment to criminals for whom criminal acts are a measure of success no less than a way of life In a series of publications Sutherland expanded the horizons of the classic Chicago School of interactionists and in the process founded criminology as a separate area of research while locating it firmly within sociology As the authors show Sutherland s work was inspired by strong moral concerns and a sense of the needs of society for social order without falling prey to either blaming the victim or pandering to sentiment about the joys of criminal life In this sense he is a model of the sociological tradition long deserving of the biography acknowledging his role as a master and pioneer Yet Gaylord and Galliher have written more than an intellectual biography They take seriously the need to fit Sutherland and his theory of differential association into a social and historical context They are also aware and critically straightforward about the limitations of Sutherland s work in criminology but place both his achievements and their limitations in a fully developed analytical context

Marxism and Criminological Theory Mark Cowling, 2008-11-03 This volume looks at Marxist thought in criminology the work of Willem Bonger Georg Rusche and Otto Kirchheimer and assesses the role of Marxist analysis in areas such as Critical Criminology and Left Realism Arguing that Marxism is relevant in the post Soviet era it offers a toolkit of Marxist theories and how to use them

An Introduction to Criminological Theory Roger Hopkins Burke, 2017-11-27 This book provides a comprehensive and up to date introduction to criminological theory for students taking courses in criminology at both undergraduate and postgraduate level Building on previous editions which broadened the debate on criminological theory this book presents the latest research and theoretical developments The text is divided into five parts the first three of which address ideal type models of criminal behaviour the rational actor predestined actor and victimized actor models Within these the various criminological theories are located chronologically in the context of one of these different traditions and the strengths and weaknesses of each theory and model are clearly identified The fourth part of the book looks closely at more recent attempts to integrate theoretical elements from both within and across models of criminal behaviour while the fifth part addresses a number of key recent concerns of criminology postmodernism cultural criminology globalization and communitarianism All major theoretical perspectives are considered including classical criminology biological and psychological positivism labelling theories feminist criminology critical criminology and left realism social control theories the risk society The new edition also features comprehensive coverage of recent developments in criminology including situation action theory desistance theory peacemaking criminology Lo c Wacquant s thesis of the penal society critical race theory and Southern theory This revised and expanded fourth edition of An Introduction to Criminological Theory includes chapter summaries critical thinking questions a full glossary of terms and theories and a timeline of criminological theory making it essential reading for those studying criminology Organizing Crime in Chinatown Jeffrey Scott

McIllwain,2014-10-01 More than a century ago organized criminals were intrinsically involved with the political social and economic life of the Chinese American community In the face of virulent racism and substantial linguistic and cultural differences they also integrated themselves successfully into the extensive underworlds and corrupt urban politics of the Progressive Era United States The process of organizing crime in Chinese American communities can be attributed in part to the larger politics that created opportunities for professional criminals For example the illegal traffic in women laborers and opium was an unintended consequence of yellow peril laws meant to provide social control over Chinese Americans Despite this hostile climate Chinese professional criminals were able to form extensive multiethnic social networks and purchase protection and some semblance of entrepreneurial equality from corrupt politicians police officers and bureaucrats While other Chinese Americans worked diligently to remove racist laws and regulations Chinatown gangsters saw opportunity for profit and power at the expense of their own community Academics the media and the government have claimed that Chinese organized crime is a new and emerging threat to the United States Focusing on events and personalities and drawing on intensive archival research in newspapers police and court documents district attorney papers and municipal reports as well as from contemporary histories and sociological treatments this study tests that claim against the historical record An Introduction to Criminology and Criminal Justice Chris Crowther-Dowey,2017-09-16 Assuming no prior knowledge this text provides a clear and user friendly introduction to the key definitions and issues of crime With an unrivalled combination of scope plus introductory pitch this is a one stop shop for undergraduates taking their first modules in criminology and criminal justice
