Performativity, Politics, and the Production of Social Space Michael R. Glass, Reuben Rose-Redwood, 2014-01-10 Theories of performativity have garnered considerable attention within the social sciences and humanities over the past two decades At the same time there has also been a growing recognition that the social production of space is fundamental to assertions of political authority and the practices of everyday life However comparatively little scholarship has explored the full implications that arise from the confluence of these two streams of social and political thought This is the first book length edited collection devoted explicitly to showcasing geographical scholarship on the spatial politics of performativity It offers a timely intervention within the field of critical human geography by exploring the performativity of political spaces and the spatiality of performative politics Through a series of geographical case studies the contributors to this volume consider the ways in which a performative conception of the political might reshape our understanding of sovereignty political subjectification and the production of social space Marking the 20th anniversary of the publication of Judith Butler's classic Bodies That Matter 1993 this edited volume brings together a range of contemporary geographical works that draw exciting new connections between performativity space and politics
