Mood and Cognition in Old Age Lia Fernandes, Huali Wang, 2018-11-30 Improving psychological well being and cognitive health is now listed as the priority on the healthy aging agenda Depression and cognitive impairment are great challenges for the elderly population There have been numerous studies on depression and cognitive impairment and dementia However the neural correlates of depression and cognitive impairment have not yet been elucidated With the development of neuroscience and relevant technologies studies on anatomical and functional neural networks neurobiological mechanisms of mood and cognition in old age will provide more insight into the potential diagnosis prevention and intervention in depression and cognitive impairment For example longitudinal neuroimaging studies depicting the trajectories of patterns of structural and functional brain networks of mild cognitive impairment may provide potential imaging markers for the onset of dementia Population based studies have addressed the potential interaction between mood and cognitive impairment in old age However there are few studies to explore the potential neural mechanism of the relationship between depression and cognitive impairment in old age In all of this process the contribution of multiple biological events cannot be neglected particularly the underlying influence of chronic diseases and concomitant polymedication as well as the geriatric conditions like frailty frequently present in this elderly population which also compromise the cognitive function and mood determining depression and conducing to worse outcomes with more morbidity and mortality Being and Becoming Old Ion Hendricks, 2019-05-20 How does aging affect the interaction between people and their social environment This intriguing book examines that question from various perspectives exploring in detail the social and psychological dimensions of the aging process Drawing on the insights of many disciplines articles investigate such issues as subjectively evaluated age facts influencing adjustment and attitudes projections and perceptions of competence Communication and the Aging Process Lois M. Tamir, 2013-10-22 Communication and the Aging Process Interaction throughout the Life Cycle focuses on the process of development from infancy through old age particularly noting the value of communication social interaction and social networks The manuscript first offers information on development throughout the life cycle as well as models of development crisis and change and methodology The text then discusses communicative interaction and origins of communication including interpersonal cognition social interaction caretaker child interaction communication between children and language development The book surveys adolescence and adulthood psychological characteristics of the aged and social world of the aged Personality and morale retirement and widowhood attitudes toward the aged and norms and rules are discussed The manuscript also takes a look at the social networks of the aged and communicative interaction and the aged Concerns include family neighbors friends misperceptions between generations and thought process and communication The text is a vital source of data for readers interested in the study of life cycle Inequality And Old Age John A Vincent, 2003-09-02 An analysis of ageing in relation to identity formation inequality and stratification The book outlines a theory of social inequality which encompasses those inequalities associated with old age in addition to class gender race and ethnicity This book is intended for undergraduate and postgraduate sociology courses in social stratification and social theory as well as students and researchers in social policy social welfare and health with an interest in the study of Old Age in Modern Society Christina R. Victor, 2013-11-11 Old age is a part of the lifecycle about which there ageing are numerous myths and stereotypes To present an overstatement of commonly held beliefs the old are portrayed as dependent individuals characterized by a lack of social autonomy unloved and neglected by both their immediate family and friends and posing a threat to the living standards of younger age groups by being a burden that consumes without producing Older people are perceived as a single homogeneous group and the experiment of ageing characterized as being the same for all individuals irrespective of the diversity of their circumstances before the onset of old age In this book detailed statistical material is used to portray the circum stances of older people in modern society in an attempt to evaluate the appropriateness or otherwise of the major stereotypes of later life This volume does not address ageing from a psychological or micro social per spective In particular we do not explore major issues relating to old age Rather we feel that from the extensive collection of surveys concerned with the elderly we can provide a context within which individual eld erly people can be studied from more anthropological or biographical perspectives Aging and Society Matilda White Riley, Marilyn Johnson, Anne Foner, 1972-03-15 Represents the first integrated effort to deal with age as a crucial variable in the social system Of special interest to sociologists for whom the sociology of age seems destined to become a special field

Old and Alone Jeremy Tunstall,2024-05-10 Originally published in 1966 this was the first full length study by a sociologist of isolation in old age Although the majority of old people were in no sense a problem group at the time a substantial minority of the elderly were alone in one or more ways About 1 3 million people aged 65 and over in Britain lived alone
