Maus, 2012-10-15 Unvarnishing Reality draws original insight to the literature politics history and culture of the cold war by closely examining the themes and goals of American and Russian satirical fiction As Derek C Maus illustrates the paranoia of nuclear standoff provided a subversive storytelling mode for authors from both nations including Thomas Pynchon Robert Coover John Barth Walker Percy Don DeLillo Kurt Vonnegut Jr Vasily Aksyonov Yuz Aleshkovsky Alexander Zinoviev Vladimir Voinovich Fazil Iskander and Sasha Sokolov Maus surveys the background of each nation's culture language sociology politics and philosophy to map the foundation on which cold war satire was built By highlighting common themes of utopianism technology and propaganda Maus effectively shows the ultimate motive of satirists on both sides was to question the various forces contributing to the cold war and to expose the absurdity of the continuous tension that pulsed between the United States and the Soviet Union for nearly half a century Although cold war literature has been studied extensively few critics have focused so keenly on comparisons of satirical fictions by Russian and American writers that condemn and subvert the polarizing ideologies inherent in superpower rivalry Such a comparison reveals thematic and structural similarities that transcend specific national and cultural origins In considering these works together Maus locates a thoroughgoing humanistic refutation of the cold war and its operative doctrines as well as a range of proposed alternatives Just as the cold war combatants ultimately reconciled in 1991 with the fall of the Soviet Union Maus seeks to bring these two literary canons together now Their thematic scope transcends cultural differences and as Maus demonstrates these writers saw that there was not only the atomic bomb to fear but also the dangers of complete national militarization and the constant polarizing threat of emergency Thus their cold war critiques still resonate today and invite further comparative studies such as this one Literary Exorcisms of Stalinism Margaret

Ziolkowski,1998 A study of the cultural implications of portraits of Stalin and his era since his death in 1953 This work explores the cultural implications of prominent images in Russian thought and literature devoted to the Stalin era since the dictator's death in 1953 Author of the works discussed include some of the most important Russian writers of the past four decades Solzhenitsyn Vasilii Grossman Vladimir Voinovich Anatolii Rybackov among others Russia's Uncommon Prophet

National Pathways to Low Carbon Emission Economies Kurt Hübner,2018-09-03 The science is clear climate change is a fact and the probability is extremely high that it has been caused by humans At the same time policy responses are hesitant rather lukewarm and differ substantially between nation states The question is what drives and what blocks radical action This book makes the case that institutional settings path dependence and emerging change coalitions are critical in explaining climate policies across the global political economy Technological and social political innovations are key drivers for dealing with climate change This class of innovation is very much guided or suppressed by a national economy s established institutional settings By anchoring national case studies in a version of the well established varieties of capitalism approach the chapters of this book show why some economies are policy leaders and others become policy followers or even policy interlockers Moreover the case studies demonstrate the extent to which external events and institutional constraints from the international polity influence national innovation strategies Taking a unique analytical approach which combines insights from innovation policies and a variety of capitalism literature the authors provide genuine comprehension of the interplay between institutional settings political actors and climate policies National Pathways to Low Carbon Emission Economies offers a valuable examination of these issues on climate change that will be of interest to academics and postgraduates researching climate policy economic policy and social movements Furthermore it is relevant for policy analysts and policy makers who are interested in learning from climate policies in the context of innovation strategies for a range of countries
