

'Poverty, migration, climate change impacts inter-related'

Climate change is a global issue and needs concerted efforts at all level to create sustainable impact. Although people are facing the repercussions of climate change, most often, they are not able to link it as a direct impact of climate change, said participants in a workshop organised by RCDC and Concern World Wide at Bhubneshwar on March 1, after visiting two villages of Rangani and Talchua gram panchayat in Rajnagar block of Kendrapara district.

Decrease in agricultural productivity and fish has disturbed the primary source of food of the people living in the coastal districts. Migration in many areas has developed as a coping mechanism of the community to solve their immediate issue of food security. Women and they pointed out.

There is a need to identify and promote traditional knowledge and practices of people to address climate change impacts and disasters, they suggested.

There is a need for separate strategy on the climate change adaptation and disasters by the civil society organisations through a collaborative effort of the Government departments and other spheres. Research studies need to be undertaken by educational institutions to authenticate facts for climate change, they opined.

Besides this, there is a need for a South Asian forum by involving universities and research organizations which would authenticate the facts of climate change with substantial data, besides generating awareness among school children, they said.
