How to Cool the Planet Jeff

Goodell, 2010-04-15 Thoughtful, informative and darkly entertaining. It's the best treatment of this important and scary topic you can find. Elizabeth Kolbert: Right now a group of scientists is working on ways to minimize the catastrophic impact of global warming. But they're not designing hybrids or fuel cells or wind turbines. They're trying to lower the temperature of the entire planet. And they're doing it with huge contraptions that suck CO<sub>2</sub> from the air, machines that brighten clouds and deflect sunlight away from the earth, even artificial volcanoes that spray heat-reflecting particles into the atmosphere. This is the radical and controversial world of geoengineering, which only five years ago was considered to be fringe. But as Jeff Goodell points out, the economic crisis combined with global political realities is making these ideas look sane, even inspired. Goodell himself started out as a skeptic concerned about tinkering with the planet's thermostat. We can't even predict next week's weather, so how are we going to change the temperature of whole regions? What if a wealthy entrepreneur shoots particles into the stratosphere on his own? Who gets blamed if something goes terribly wrong? And perhaps most disturbing, what about wars waged with climate control as the primary weapon? There are certainly risks, but Goodell believes the alternatives could be worse. In the end, he persuades us that geoengineering may just be our last best hope, a Plan B for the environment. His compelling tale of scientific hubris and technical daring is sure to jumpstart the next big debate about the future of life on earth. Goodell explores with infectious curiosity and thoughtful narration this strange, promising and untested suite of climate fixes. BusinessWeek: A quick, enjoyable read through a complex, timely topic. And after you read it, you'll never look at the sky or the ocean or Earth really in quite the same way again. The Christian Science Monitor: America in 1492 Alvin M. Josephy, Jr., 1993-02-02 When Columbus landed in 1492, the New World was far from being a vast expanse of empty wilderness; it was home to some seventy-five million people. They ranged from the Arctic to Tierra del Fuego, spoke as many as two thousand different languages and lived in groups that varied from small bands of hunter-gatherers to the sophisticated and dazzling empires of the Incas and Aztecs This brilliantly detailed and documented volume brings together essays by fifteen leading scholars field to present a comprehensive and richly evocative portrait of Native American life on the eve of Columbus s first landfall Developed at the D Arcy McNickle Center for the History of the American Indian and edited by award winning author Alvin M Josehpy Jr America in 1492 is an invaluable work that combines the insights of historians anthropologists and students of art religion and folklore Its dozens of illustrations drawn from largely from the rare books and manuscripts housed at the Newberry Library open a window on worlds flourished in the Americas five hundred years ago
