Governance in the Twenty-first Century Canadian Centre for Management Development, 2000 Numerous administrative reforms during the past several decades referred to as the New Public Management have altered government in a number of fundamental ways These changes have in turn produced the need for even greater change if the public sector is to be capable of governing efficiently and responsibly The challenges now facing government are numerous including the need to recruit capable and committed young public servants adapt to new information technology manage changing intergovernmental relations and perhaps most important hold the reformed administrative structures accountable to both political demands and legal standards Some countries have already initiated new rounds of reform while others are still attempting to understand and absorb the consequences of changes motivated by new public management ideas In Governance in the twenty first century international experts recognise both the difficulty of making predictions and the need to consider the future in order to prepare the public sector for new challenges. The authors' predictions and recommendations are anchored in a thorough understanding of contemporary public administration. They point out that not only have previous reforms made yet more change necessary and inevitable but that the purpose of these reforms is to attempt to return government to the position of respect and competence it enjoyed in the past. B. Guy Peters is Maurice Falk Professor of American Government, Department of Political Science, University of Pittsburgh. Donald J. Savoie holds the Clement Cormier Chair in Economic Development at the Universit  de Moncton where he also teaches public administration.

Public Management Reform : A Comparative Analysis Christopher Pollitt, Geert Bouckaert, 1999-12-09 In this major new contribution to a rapidly expanding field the authors offer an integrated analysis of the wave of management reforms which have swept through so many countries in the last twenty years. The reform trajectories of ten countries are compared and key differences of approach discussed. Unlike some previous works this volume affords balanced coverage to the New Public Management (NPM) and the non-NPM or reluctant NPM countries since it covers Australia, Canada, Finland, France, Germany, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, the UK and the USA. Unusually it also includes a preliminary analysis of attempts to improve management within the European Commission.

The Oxford Handbook of Governance David Levi-Faur, 2012-03-29 This Oxford Handbook will be the definitive study of governance for years to come. Governance has become one of the most popular terms in contemporary political science; this Handbook explores the full range of meaning and application of the concept and its use in a number of research fields.

Person-Job Fit Changes As A Consequence Of Public Management Reforms In Self-Governmental Units Omar Scharifi, 2016-08-22 The research is based on the assumption that management reforms cause changes in municipal administration and its person-job fit. The theoretical description of the problem is possible by drawing on Edward's 1991 person-job fit theorem. Literature on modernisation concepts as e.g. the New Public Management (NPM) shows a general awareness of reforms' consequences on the personnel. The human capital theory delivers explanations for the incentive to react of both the organisation's executive level as well as the employees in case management reforms cause a discrepancy in person-job fit. The conducted empirical studies confirm that management reforms do result in changes with impact on the person-job fit. The literature research brought evidence that NPM has only been adopted partially. Since the transformation some reforms and changes in legislation have laid the foundation for a self-governmental administration that scores compared to the EU standard as relatively modern. The investigated Polish municipalities react on the changes in the person-job fit. For example, employees do learn in a self-organised way. The administration reacts on the discrepancies mainly by recruiting new staff and by reallocating the tasks. Training is not applied systematically as means to problem solving and is available in many cases only in the context of externally financed projects and even then not oriented towards individual needs. Changes do have enormous consequences for the personnel management of municipal administration. They change the requirements for the job holders substantially and the administrations seem not able to react on the changes in a way that the personnel is enabled to meet the requirements Unclear is if such an objective seems feasible if one considers the extreme dimensions of change that spread between the paradigms of socialist administration and modernisation concepts in the sense of NPM

International Public Financial Management Reform James Guthrie, Christopher Humphrey, Lawrence R. Jones, Olov Olson, 2005-05-01 This book is intended to give readers detailed information and perspectives on the reform of financial management reform practices in a variety of national settings around the world The chapters explore the reform agenda in each nation and factors that stimulated change Each chapter addresses the extent of the influence of New Public Management concepts and practices on reform implementation The nations whose experience is represented in this book are among the most often cited examples of progressive change to be examined and perhaps emulated by governments in other nations In the introductory chapter the editors address the question whether and to what extent the financial management reforms detailed in the book reveal real progress or a progression of questions and dilemmas faced but not solved over the past several decades

Civil Service Systems in Anglo-American Countries John Halligan,2004-01-01 Civil Service Systems in Anglo American Countries presents a comprehensive overview of the important issues in modern bureaucracies combined with a comparative analysis of the civil service systems administrative traditions of five Anglo American nations From New Public Management to New Political Governance Herman Bakvis, Mark D. Jarvis, 2012-06-26 With the direct participation of partisan political staff in governance the onset of permanent election campaigns heavily dependent on negative advertising and the expectation that the public service will not only merely implement but enthusiastically support the agenda of the elected government we are experiencing a new form of political governance The late Peter Aucoin 1943 2011 has argued that traditional norms of impartial loyalty have been displaced by partisanship on the part of civil servants and that the political executive is keen on directly controlling all aspects of communication and interaction between government and citizens The arrival of New Political Governance has a direct bearing on the long standing tension between the need of ensuring democratic control over bureaucracy while also allowing the public service sufficient flexibility to exercise discretion judgment and professional expertise when implementing and managing programs Through a series of essays using Aucoin's New Political Governance framework leading scholars in the field address the manner in which this tension and its conflicts have played out over the past decade in different domains Contributors examine themes including accountability democracy public management and reform the paradoxes of electoral democracy and the dilemmas of democratic governance Contributors include Mark Jarvis University of Victoria Herman Bakvis University of Victoria B Guy Peters University of Pittsburgh Donald Savoie Universit  de Moncton Allan Tupper University of British Columbia Lori Turnbull Dalhousie David E Smith University of Saskatchewan C E S Franks Queen's R Kenneth Carty University of British Columbia Lisa Young University of Calgary Jennifer Smith Dalhousie Gerald Baier University of British Columbia Fred Fletcher York University Andr  Blais Universit  de Montr al Evert Lindquist University of Victoria Ken Rasmussen University of Regina Jonathan Boston Victoria University John Halligan University of Canberra Grace Skogstad University of Toronto Jenn Wallner University of Ottawa Cosmo Howard University of Victoria Susan Phillips Carleton University Paul Thomas University of Manitoba Ralph Heintzman University of Ottawa Luc Juillet University of Ottawa G Bruce Doern Carleton Kenneth Kernaghan Brock

Public Administration and Policy in Korea Keun Namkoong, Kyung-ho Cho, Sangmook Kim, 2017-07-06 The present Korean public administration and policy system has shown very significant differences compared to the system in 1970s This book provides a comprehensive and holistic view on the development of Korean public policy and administration Instead of dichotomizing the policy and administration this book integrates two fields to provide a more holistic view on the Korean public sector The book also attempts to overcome simplified explanations on the developmental state theory The book aims to explain who the key actors are during the post democratization period how the administrative systems reform and what kinds of social problems are transformed into public policies This explanation suggests that the role of government shifts from a dominant actor to an actor within a complex network governance This book will be a useful reference to anyone who wishes to learn more about the experience of the Korean development and the role of administration and policy
