Scroll down for the Communities Taking Action (CTA) interactive collection of profiles that showcases successful community initiatives to improve health equity. In order to promote just and equitable health outcomes, communities need social, cultural, and physical environments that prevent illness and injury in the first place. In addition, their leaders must be committed to promoting racial and social justice. These profiles demonstrate how strong leadership, community engagement and advocacy, innovative thinking, and changes in local policies and institutional practices can successfully converge to shape healthier, more equitable community environments.

About CTA:

Prevention Institute would like to acknowledge the W.K. Kellogg Foundation for its funding to support the development of Communities Taking Action. We would also like to thank the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), and The California Endowment for the funding they provided to support the development of many of the individual profiles that comprise the database.

Disclaimer: Though staff from Prevention Institute captured information in the profiles to the best of their ability, we recognize and regret any potentially inaccurate information that may appear in the collection of profiles. Some of the profiles we include in this collection are from external organizations; appropriate credit is given.

Your Feedback is Welcome: We'd love to hear from you. If one or more of the profiles in Communities Taking Action has inspired your work, or if your community has successfully championed equity and health, we encourage you to share your story with us.

Turner, 2009-07-23 All of us as Canadians are touched throughout our lives by some aspect of social welfare either as recipients donors or taxpayers. But despite the importance of the social network in our country there has been no single source of information about this critical component of our society. Even professionals in the field of social work or social services have not had a comprehensive volume addressing the myriad features of this critical societal structure. The Encyclopedia of Canadian Social Work fills this need. Over five hundred topics important to Canadian social work are covered written by a highly diverse group of social workers covering all aspects of the field and all areas of the country. Practitioners policy makers academics social advocates researchers students and administrators present a rich overview of the complexity and diversity of social work and social welfare as it exists in Canada. The principal finding from this project underscores the long held perception that there is a Canadian model of social work that is unique and stands as a useful model to other countries. The Encyclopedia of Canadian Social Work will be an important source of information both to Canadians and to interested groups around the world.
