and medium to long term policies that accelerate the structural transformation and create more and better jobs In response to supply shocks monetary policy in the region may prove ineffective to bring down inflation and other short run options may be restricted by the lack of fiscal space Concessional financing might be key to helping countries alleviate the impact of food and fuel inflation Over the medium term avoiding stagflation may require a combination of actionable measures that improve the resilience of the economy by shoring up productivity and job creation Lastly ongoing actions to enhance social protection including dynamic delivery systems for rapid scalability and shock sensitive financing could be strengthened further to improve economic resilience against shocks and foster investments in productive assets
