Tales of Mean Streets (Illustrated Edition) Arthur Morrison, 2018-04 Although Morrison s characters live and die around the East End of the late Victorian period many of these people s lives and problems are still recognizable and being experienced by poor people in today s Britain These are not stories of an idealised working class but people whose grinding poverty and lack of prospects result in hopeless disappointed lives Be it the young woman who drifts into an abusive relationship with a violent man the young starving man trying to get a break by boxing the mental breakdown of a man abandoned with young children or the mother and daughter who die living a life of genteel starvation we can recognise that their tragedies result from the poverty of their lives Even those who get a break by coming into money find themselves failing the spend spend spend mentality the failed business or in a weirdly relevant story for modern times the amateur buy to let landlord who is ruined by lack of understanding of what he is doing bad tenants and finally a friend of the mortgage lender ready to buy back cheaply what has cost the old man his money and health There are some clever observations of working class life including a Friday night on the bus across the river to get a late drink or a night out at the fair Some of the characters are unpleasant and utterly without shame Morrison seems to have no time for those ideological or religious movements operating in the East End at the time The Church is a ridiculous place that redeems no one the Anarchist is revealed by the proletariat to be cowardly and lacking in all conviction the Trade Unionist is a vile bully setting thugs on an old man rendering him unable to work and sent to the workhouse while sub letting the old man s property and thundering on soap boxes against evil landlords Tales of Mean Streets. Lizerunt, Squire Napper, Without visible means, Three rounds, and other by Arthur Morrison. Arthur Morrison,1912 Tales of Mean Streets - 1894 Arthur Morrison,2017-11-03 Short stories of the East End at one time the slimy underbelly of London The stories vary in style from the gritty no holds barred tale of Lizerunt to the light humor of That Brute Simmons The greater number of these stories and studies were first printed in The National Observer the introduction in a slightly different form in Macmillan s Magazine That Brute Simmons and A Conversion have been published in The Pall Mall Budget and The Red Cow Group is new Arthur George Morrison 1 November 1863 4 December 1945 was an English writer and journalist known for his realistic novels and stories about working class life in London s East End and for his detective stories featuring the detective Martin Hewitt He also collected Japanese art and published several works on the subject He left a large collection of paintings and other works of art to the British Museum after his death in 1945 Morrison s best known work of fiction is his novel A Child of the Jago 1896 Early life Morrison was born in Poplar in the East End of London on 1 November 1863 His father George was an engine fitter at the London Docks George died in 1871 of tuberculosis leaving his wife Jane with three children including Arthur Arthur spent his youth in the East End In 1879 he began working as an office boy in the Architect s Department of the London School Board He later remembered frequenting used bookstores in Whitechapel Road around this time In 1880 Arthur s mother took over a shop in Grundy Street Morrison published his first work a humorous poem in the magazine Cycling in 1880 and took up cycling and boxing He continued to publish works in various cycling journals Career In 1885 Morrison published his first serious journalistic work in the newspaper The Globe In 1886 after having worked his way up to the rank of a third class clerk he was appointed to a position at the People s Palace in Mile End In 1888 he was given reading privileges at the British Museum In the same year he published a collection of thirteen sketches entitled Cockney Corner describing life and conditions in several London districts including Soho Whitechapel and Bow Street In 1889 he became an editor of the paper Palace Journal reprinting some of his Cockney Corner sketches and writing commentaries on books and other subjects including the life of London poor people In 1890 he left this job and joined the editorial staff of The Globe and moved to lodgings in the Strand In 1891 he published his first book The Shadows Around Us a collection of supernatural stories In October 1891 his short story A Street was published in Macmillan's Magazine In 1892 he collaborated with illustrator J A Sheppard on a collection of animal sketches one entitled My Neighbors Dogs for The Strand Magazine Later that year he married Elizabeth Thatcher at Forest Gate He befriended writer and editor William Ernest Henley around this time publishing stories of working class life in Henley's National Observer between 1892-94 His son Guy Morrison was born in 1893 In 1894 Morrison published his first detective story featuring the detective Martin Hewitt In November he published his short story collection Tales of Mean Streets dedicating the work to Henley The collection was reviewed in 1896 in America by Jacob Riis Morrison later said that the work was publicly banned Reviewers of the collection objected to his story Lizerunt causing Morrison to write a response in 1895 Later in 1894 he published Martin Hewitt Investigator In 1895 he was invited by writer and clergyman Reverend A O M Jay to visit the Old Nichol Street Rookery

Tales of Mean Streets Arthur George Morrison Arthur Morrison, 2018-02-12 It was considered an intrepid thing for

Walter Besant to do when twelve or thirteen years ago he invaded the great East End of London and drew upon its unknown wealth of varied material to people that most charming novel All Sorts and Conditions of Men Until then the West End knew little of its contiguous neighbor in the East Dickens s kaleidoscopic views of low life in the South of London were manifestly caricatures of the slum specimens of human nature which he purposely sought and often distorted to suit his bizarre humor Mr Besant may be fairly considered as the pioneer of those who have since descended to the great uncharted region of East London about which so far as our knowledge of the existing conditions of human life in that community are concerned we remained until as it were yesterday almost as ignorant as of the undiscovered territories in Central Africa
