of this work signals the maturity of the field of language and education as an international and interdisciplinary field of significance and cohesion. These volumes confirm that language and education is much more than the preserve of any single discipline. In designing these volumes we have tried to recognise the diversity of the field in our selection of contributors and in our choice of topics. The contributors come from every continent and from more than 40 countries. Their reviews discuss language and education issues affecting every country in the world. We have also tried to recognise the diverse interdisciplinary nature of language and education in the selection of the editorial personnel themselves. The major academic interests of the volume editors confirm this. As principal volume editor for Volume 1, Ruth Wodak has interests in critical linguistics, sociology of language and language policy. For Volume 2, Viv Edwards has interests in policy and practice in multilingual classrooms and the sociology of language. For Volume 3, Bronwyn Davies has interests in the social psychology of language, the sociology of language and interdisciplinary studies. For Volume 4, Richard Tucker has interests in language theory, applied linguistics and the implementation and evaluation of innovative language education programs.

Schooling the Child Helena Austin, Bronwyn Dwyer, Peter Freebody, 2005-08-19. What is a child? How is the concept of childhood defined? This book aims to explore these perennial and complex questions by looking at the way in which society constructs and understands childhood. The authors focus in particular on the school, a key location within which social and cultural notions of childhood are defined and performed. The book is divided into three major parts. Part 1 frames the accepted notions of childhood and schooling and introduces ethnomethodological analysis as a tool to rethink current versions of the child. Part 2 focuses on how school students become members of a category within the institution of the classroom. The authors explore this idea through transcripts of talk between teachers and students and amongst students themselves in two classroom studies. Part 3 looks at the materials of education, concentrating specifically on children's texts. The authors examine how such texts portray a notion of the child within the story and also assume a notion of the child as reader of the story. This important book shows how much is at stake for children in accepting adults' deep-seated notions of childhood. It will be of great interest to educational researchers and policy makers, sociologists of childhood, teachers and student teachers.

The Consequentiality of Communication Stuart J. Sigman, 2013-11-05 In a bold attempt to redirect the ways theories of communication are conceived and research on communication processes are conducted this volume questions prevailing communication scholarship that emphasizes the cultural psychological and sociological variables that impact on and or are impacted by communication Instead of focusing on the consequences of communication this books urges readers to examine the consequentiality of communication what it is about the communication process that enables it to play a defining role in our lives Communication is not a neutral conveyor of meanings derived from culture cognition or social structure and is not explained by correlations with external variables Meaning emerges from the communication process itself it is dependent upon what transpires during the real time moments of communicators behaving with each other To properly study this new paradigm a new vocabulary for thinking about the consequentiality of communication is needed and proposed Four theoretical orientations are used to stake out this new territory coordinated management of meaning neo rhetorical theory conversation analysis and social communication theory While there are points of agreement and overlap on the need to study communication as inherently consequential there are also differences across the four theories in the value of rules as an explanatory concept on the relationship between structure and process and on the very constitution of a theory Thus this book has the benefit of articulating a new paradigm for communication scholarship without losing sight of the discipline's rich diversity

Conversation Analysis and Sociological Theory Melisa Stevanovic, David Inglis, Anssi Peräkylä, Emmi Koskinen, 2024-08-22 The relations between Conversation Analysis CA sociology and social theory are complex often ambiguous and have sometimes been rather fraught While there might be some relatively high level of agreement amongst their practitioners on what CA is what it does and what it is meant to achieve that is not so much the case for the more open and broad terrains of sociology and social theory Moreover each of the domains in question has changed in orientation composition and academic location since CA first came into existence in the late 1960s While initially a child of sociology as CA has matured and extended its substantive and methodological reach it has become a large intellectual domain in its own right with inputs from and relevance for a host of other disciplines notably linguistics anthropology and psychology It is now no longer at all clear how CA relates to sociology and social theory what each side currently does or what it could bring to the other in the future
