Changing the Course of AIDS David Dickinson, 2011-03-15 Changing the Course of AIDS is an in depth evaluation of a new and exciting way to create the kind of much needed behavioral change that could affect the course of the global health crisis of HIV AIDS This case study from the South African HIV AIDS epidemic demonstrates that regular workers serving as peer educators can be as or even more effective agents of behavioral change than experts who lecture about the facts and so called appropriate health care behavior After spending six years researching the response of large South African companies to the epidemic that is decimating their workforce as well as South African communities David Dickinson describes the promise of this grassroots intervention workers educating one another in the workplace and community and the limitations of traditional top down strategies Dickinson's book takes us right into the South African workplace to show how effective and yet enormously complex peer education really is We see what it means when workers directly tackle the kinds of sexual gender religious ethnic and broader social and political taboos that make behavior change so difficult particularly when that behavior involves sex and sexuality Dickinson s findings show that people who are not officially health care experts or even health care workers can be skilled and effective educators In this book we see why peer education has so much to offer societies grappling with the HIV AIDS epidemic and why those interested in changing behaviors to ameliorate other health problems like obesity alcoholism and substance abuse have so much to learn from the South African example Focus on Federal Employee Health and Assistance Programs ,1994 Talking about AIDS [video] ,1989 The AIDS Handbook John Hubley,1995 Aiducation 20-10 Taking Control of Tb & Aids Dr. Edwin Mavunika Mapara,2010-10-04 TB and AIDS are visiting and touching many homes in both the developed and developing countries leaving misery suffering orphans and in many cases death that could have been prevented and avoided This book is for the AIDucators that have participated in driving AIDucation 20 10 in the communities of London It is for those friends that I had social intercourses with on those Friday and Saturday evenings It is for the health promoters the politicians the pastors the ministers the imams the teachers the students the youth the volunteers the carers and all those who want to make a difference and bring TB and AIDS under control The book addresses basic issues that we need to know Facts on HIV infections AIDS and TB the HIV test voluntary counselling and testing VCT common sexually transmitted infections common HIV associated conditions and the popular Isle of Wight powerpoint presentation that was given to the Christian youths at their summer camp in August 2009 This book might be useful to medical students and nursing students
