Fin-de-Siècle Splendor Dewei Wang,1997 The reigning view of literary historians has been that the May Fourth movement of 1919 marks the division between the traditional and the modern in Chinese literature This book argues that signs of reform and innovation can be discerned long before May Fourth and that as China entered the arena of modern international history in the late Qing it was already developing its own complex matrix of incipient modernities It demonstrates that late Qing fiction nurtured a creative innovative poetics one that was spurned by the reformers of the May Fourth generation in favor of Western style realism The author recognizes that a full account of modern Chinese fiction needs to ask why so many genres styles themes and figures found in late imperial fiction were repressed by modern Chinese literary discourse He focuses on four genres of late Qing fiction that have been either rudely dismissed in pejorative terms or simply ignored depravity romances court case and chivalric cycles grotesque expos s and scientific fantasies The author shows that in spite of the realist orthodoxy that has dominated Chinese literature since the May Fourth movement these unwelcome genres have continually found their way back into mainstream discourse their influence being increasingly evident in recent decades This first comprehensive study of late Qing fiction discusses

Sewell, 2010-04-16 In 1962 Jamaica and Trinidad and Tobago became independent countries Barbados followed in 1966 In the years leading up to these events the history of the British West Indies was written largely by the British the colonial power who focused on the process of decolonization and the key local players involved After independence local scholars also focused on the role of political leaders in the newly independent countries To date scholars have paid little attention to the impact of these events on the local populations of these islands

Decolonization and the Other The Case of the British West Indies explores the local perspectives on and reactions to events by using West Indian literature to supplement the historical record Beginning in the 1930s when local demands for political participation increased through the process of decolonization and into the early years of independence West Indian writers used their life experiences to document local reaction West Indian literature first appeared in 1950 when British publishers became interested in island authors and their novels By using the novels to supplement the historical record we can gain a better understanding of the process of decolonization and the early years of independence in the British West Indies     The Island Called Paradise Philip D.
