Hodges, John Lachs, 2000 While Ludwig Wittgenstein 1889 1951 and George Santayana 1863 1952 may never have met or even have studied one another's work they experienced similar cultural conditions and their thinking took similar shapes Yet until now their respective bodies of work have been examined separately and in isolation from one another Santayana is often regarded as an aesthete and metaphysician but Wittgenstein's work is usually seen as antithetical to the philosophical approaches favored by Santayana In this insightful new study Michael Hodges and John Lachs argue that behind the striking differences in philosophical style and vocabulary there is a surprising agreement in position The similarities have largely gone unnoticed because of their divergent styles different metaphilosophies and separate spheres of influence Hodges and Lachs show that Santayana's and Wittgenstein's works express their philosophical responses to contingency Surprisingly both thinkers turn to the integrity of human practices to establish a viable philosophical understanding of the human condition Both of these important twentieth century philosophers formed their mature views at a time when the comfortable certainties of Western civilization were crumbling all around them What they say is similar at least in part because they wished to resist the spread of ruin by relying on the calm sanity of our linguistic and other practices According to both it is not living human knowledge but a mistaken philosophical tradition that demands foundations and thus creates intellectual homelessness and displacement Both thought that to get our house in order we have to rethink our social religious philosophical and moral practices outside the context of the search for certainty This insight and the projects that flowed from it define their philosophical kinship Thinking in the Ruins will enhance our understanding of these monumental thinkers intellectual accomplishments and show how each influenced subsequent American philosophers The book also serves as a call to philosophers to look beyond traditional classifications to the substance of philosophical thought
