

They welcomed Joshua easily. He had the look of a shepherd and not a hard soldier like the rest. The people gathered around as he instructed the men steps leading to a platform.

"People of Israel, this is the day we have been waiting for. Today we will move the heavy burden and enter the land that the Lord has promised us."

It cheer went up.

"You priests, men of the Levites, you will lead. You are to take up the Ark of the Covenant and march with it ahead of the people."

The priests moved toward the large box sitting to one side of the platform. A red cloth covered it, and there were two golden poles run through rings of gold at the corners. That was all that could be seen of it. Four silver priests grasped the poles, lifted the ark, and moved with it toward the river. A long plaintive note sounded from the ark's horn trumpet. The other priests fell in line, and the procession solemnly moved forward.

"Look, Derek, there it is, the Ark of the Covenant. Do you know what is in it? The stone tablets with the Ten Commandments written on them."

"Wow!" He turned to Simon. "Why are they doing this? Shouldn't there be soldiers guarding the ark? It could be captured."

"I only know that Joshua says he is doing all things as the Lord has commanded." His reply was interrupted by the ark's horn sounding a second time. The procession halted, and the four priests bearing the ark went on alone.
