The Prehistoric Exploration and Colonisation of the Pacific Geoffrey Irwin, 1992 The exploration and colonisation of the Pacific is a remarkable episode of human prehistory Early sea going explorers had no prior knowledge of Pacific geography no documents to record their route no metal no instruments for measuring time and none for exploration Forty years of modern archaeology experimental voyages in rafts and computer simulations of voyages have produced an enormous range of literature on this controversial and mysterious subject This book represents a major advance in knowledge of the settlement of the Pacific by suggesting that exploration was rapid and purposeful undertaken systematically and that navigation methods progressively improved Using an innovative model to establish a detailed theory of navigation Geoffrey Irwin claims that rather than sailing randomly downwind in search of the unknown Pacific Islanders expanded settlement by the cautious strategy of exploring upwind so as to ease their safe return The author has tested this hypothesis against the chronological data from archaeological investigation with a computer simulation of demographic and exploration patterns and by sailing throughout the region himself The Prehistoric Archaeology of Norfolk Island Jim Specht, 1984 Early Prehistory of Fiji Geoffrey Richard Clark, Atholl Anderson, 2009-12-01 I enjoyed reading this volume It is rare to see such a comprehensive report on hard data published these days especially one so insightfully contextualised by the editors introductory and concluding chapters These scholars and the others involved in the work really know their stuff and it shows The editors connect the preoccupations of Pacific archaeologists with those of their colleagues working in other island regions and on big questions of colonisation migration interaction and patterns and processes of cultural change in hitherto uninhabited environments These sorts of outward looking big picture contextual studies are invaluable but all too often are missing from locally and regionally oriented writing very much to its detriment In sum the work strongly advances our understanding of the early prehistory of Fiji through its well integrated combination of original research and the reinterpretation of existing knowledge in the context of wider theoretical and historical concerns In doing so The Early Prehistory of Fiji makes a truly substantial contribution to Pacific and archaeological scholarship Professor Ian Lilley The University of Queensland Bishop Museum Occasional Papers ,2003 The Colonization of Unfamiliar Landscapes Marcy Rockman, James Steele, 2003-12-08 A series of case studies examines the archaeological evidence for and interpretations of landscape learning from the movement of the first pre modern humans into Europe to the English colonists Sydney's Aboriginal Past Val Attenbrow, 2010 This second edition of Sydney's Aboriginal Past draws on at Jamestown the latest historical archaeological geological environmental and linguistic research as well as oral evidence of present day Aboriginal people to reveal the diversity of Aboriginal life in the Sydney region before during and for the first thirty years of British settlement Records of the Australian Museum ,1993 Archaeology in Oceania, 2000 F.D. Matsuda, 2023-01-05 Volume I of The Cambridge History of the Pacific Ocean provides a wide ranging survey of Pacific history to 1800 It focuses on varied concepts of the Pacific environment and its impact on human history as well as tracing the early exploration and colonization of the Pacific the evolution of Indigenous maritime cultures after colonization and the disruptive arrival of Europeans Bringing together a diversity of subjects and viewpoints this volume introduces a broad variety of topics engaging fully with emerging environmental and political conflicts over Pacific Ocean spaces These essays emphasize the impact of the deep history of interactions on and across the Pacific to the present day

Jones, 2016-11-30 Excavation of a Scheduled burial mound on Whitehorse Hill Dartmoor revealed an unexpected intact burial deposit of Early Bronze Age date associated with an unparalleled range of artefacts The cremated remains of a young person had been placed within a bearskin pelt and provided with a basketry container from which a braided band with tin studs had spilled out Within the container were beads of shale amber clay and tin two pairs of turned wooden studs and a worked flint flake A unique item possibly a sash or band made from textile and animal skin was found beneath the container Beneath this the basal stone of the cist had been covered by a layer purple moor grass which had been collected in summer Analysis of environmental material from the site has revealed important insights into the pyre material used to burn the body as well as providing important information about the environment in which the cist was constructed The unparalleled assemblage of organic objects has yielded insights into a range of materials which have not survived from the earlier Bronze Age elsewhere in southern Britain

The Drowning of a Cornish Prehistoric Landscape Andy M.

Jones, Michael J. Allen, 2023-06-01 Between 2018 and 2019 Cornwall Archaeological Unit undertook two projects at Mount s Bay Penwith The first involved the excavation of a Bronze Age barrow and the second environmental augur core sampling in

Marazion Marsh Both sites lie within an area of coastal hinterland which has been subject to incursions by rising sea levels Since the Mesolithic an area of approximately 1 kilometer in extent between the current shoreline and St Michael s Mount has been lost to gradually rising sea levels With current climate change this process is likely to occur at an increasing rate Given their proximity the opportunity was taken to draw the results from the two projects together along with all available existing environmental data from the area For the first time the results from all previous palaeoenvironmental projects in the Mount's Bay area have been brought together Evidence for coastal change and sea level rise is discussed and a model for the drowning landscape presented In addition to modeling the loss of land and describing the environment over time social responses including the wider context of the Bronze Age barrow and later Bronze Age metalwork deposition in the Mount s Bay environs are considered The effects of the gradual loss of land are discussed in terms of how change is perceived its effects on community resilience and the construction of social memory and narratives of place The volume presents the potential for nationally significant environmental data to survive which demonstrates the long term effects of climate change and rising sea levels and peoples responses to these over time Shell Middens in Atlantic Europe Nicky Milner, Oliver E. Craig, G. N. Bailey, 2007 Based on a workshop on shell middens in Atlantic Europe held in the Kings Manor at the University of York in September 2005 The Colonial Earth Tim Bonyhady, 2003-04-01 Using the work of great Australian painters and poets as an entry point this cultural study counters the popular myth that early colonial settlers were environmentally irresponsible and offers both aesthetic and historical evidence that suggests nature always figured prominently in the Australian national consciousness Preserving endangered species protecting forests maintaining public land rights and staving off climate change were at issue in the first environmental law of Australia enacted in 1788 Parlimentary debates personal observations and artistic renderings explore the texture and dimensions of early Australian environmentalism
