The Prison As Metaphor Re Imagining International Relations Studies In International Relations Vol 1:

The Prison as Metaphor Michael P. Marks, 2004 Whether wittingly or unwittingly scholars of international relations have peppered the field with a wide range of metaphors that serve as vehicles for theorizing about world affairs Yet as pervasive as metaphors are in international relations theory theorists efforts to employ metaphorical imagery to suggest new ways of thinking have been haphazard and sporadic In this book Michael P Marks suggests a new metaphor with which to conceptualize international relations the modern prison Many of the same questions that are asked about the so called anarchy of the international system are also frequently asked of life among prison inmates Marks finds that lessons from inmate relations can be applied to the study of international affairs This comparison between the prison and international relations reveals how the construction of human interaction in both realms is infinitely complex

The Linguistics of Crime John Douthwaite, Ulrike Tabbert, 2023-01-05 Bringing together scholars from a range of disciplines this book explores the analysis of crime related language Drawing on ideas from stylistics pragmatics cognitive linguistics metaphor theory critical discourse analysis multimodality corpus linguistics and intertextuality it compares and contrasts the linguistic representation of crime across a range of genres both fictitious crime novels and crime in TV film and music and in real life crime reporting prison discourse and statements used in courts It touches on current political topics like BlackLivesMatter human child trafficking and the genocide of the Kurds among others making it essential reading for linguists criminologists and those with a general interest in crime related topics alike Covering a variety of text genres and methodological approaches and united by the aim of deciphering how crime is portrayed ideologically this book is the next step in developing research at the intersection of linguistics criminology literature and media studies

Warring with Words Michael Hanne, William D. Crano, Jeffery Scott Mio, 2014-08-01 Scholars in many of the disciplines surrounding politics explicitly utilize either a narrative perspective or a metaphor perspective though rarely the two in combination to analyze issues theoretical and practical domestic and international in the broad field of politics Among the topics they have studied are competing metaphors for the state or nation which have been coined over the centuries in diverse cultures the frequency with which communal and international conflicts are generated at least in part by the clashing religious and historical narratives held by opposing groups the cognitive short cuts employing metaphor by which citizens make sense of politics the need for political candidates to project a convincing self narrative the extent to which the metaphors used to formulate social issues determine the policies which will be developed to resolve them the failure of narratives around the security of the nation to take account of the individual experiences of women and children This volume is the first in which eminent scholars from disciplines as diverse as social psychology anthropology political theory international relations feminist political science and media studies have sought to integrate the narrative and the metaphor perspectives on politics It will appeal to any scholar interested in the many ways in which narrative and metaphor function in combination as cognitive and rhetorical
