in order to liberate people's minds in both North and South for bold responses to the environmental and ethical challenges now confronting humanity. The combined result forms a must-read invitation to experts, grassroots movements, and students of development to recognize the tainted glasses they put on whenever they participate in the development discourse.

Getting and Spending Susan Strasser, Charles McGovern, Matthias Judd, 1998-11-13. The developing history of consumption is not so much a separate field as a prism through which many aspects of social and political life may be viewed. The essays in this collection represent a variety of approaches in Europe and America yet their commonalities suggest recent directions in the scholarship raising such themes as consumption and democracy, the development of a global economy, the role of the state, the centrality of consumption to Cold War politics, the importance of the Second World War as a historical divide, the language of consumption, the contexts of locality, race, ethnicity, gender, and class, and the environmental consequences of twentieth-century consumer society. Implicitly and sometimes explicitly they explore the role of the historian as social, political, and moral critic. The essays discuss products, corporate strategies, government policies, and ideas about consumption. Unlike other studies of twentieth-century consumption, this book provides international comparisons. The New World of Politics Neal Riemer, Douglas W. Simon, 1997-03. In this fourth edition, Neal Riemer and Douglas W. Simon again seek to introduce students to the challenging discipline of political science by highlighting six cardinal features. The editors strongly believe that their unique and comprehensive approach, employing those six features, can best equip students of political science to stay abreast of the ever-changing and ever-challenging world of politics. First and most important, Riemer and Simon affirm the importance of addressing the three main concerns of political science: political philosophy and ethics, empirical behavioral political science, and public policy. Second, the authors reaffirm their normative preference for politics as a civilizing enterprise, one that enables people in the political community to live better, to grow robustly in mind and spirit, and to find creative fulfillment. The fourth cardinal feature requires recognizing realistically the ever-changing nature of politics and the tasks of assessing and responding to changing values. The sixth cardinal feature of The New World of Politics is understanding the importance of keeping the future in mind, not only the immediate future but the long-range future. This book seeks to introduce students to political science as a discipline intimately involved with empirical social scientific inquiry and public policy. Neal Riemer and Douglas W. Simon are endeavoring to help students respond to those future problems with understanding and wisdom. A Collegiate Press book. Culture and international conflict resolution Tarja Vayrynen, 2018-07-30. This book re-examines conflict resolution and particularly problem solving in conflict resolution from a new perspective. The book is a critical study of John Burton's work and outlines an alternative framework for the study of international conflict. It provides an insight into the problems of conflict and conflict resolution from a social constructionist angle. Vayrynen argues that culture has a constitutive role in international conflict and conflict resolution. Culture offers a grammar for acting in and interpreting the world and provides understandings of conflict and its resolution Theories which deny the importance of cultural failure to understand the ontological conditions of human being
