The Politics of Space and Place Bob Brecher, Nicola Clewer, Doug Elsey, 2013-01-03 What might an analysis of politics which focuses on the operation of power through space and place and on the spatial structuring of inequality tell us about the world we make for ourselves and others From the national border to the wire fence from the privatisation of land to the exclusion and expulsion of persecuted peoples questions of space and place of who can be where and what they can do there are at the very heart of the most important political debates of our time Bringing together an interdisciplinary collection of authors deploying diverse perspectives and methodological approaches this book responds to the pressing demand to reflect on and engage with some of the key questions raised by a political analysis of space and place Its chapters chart the ways in which inequality and exclusion are played out in spatial terms exploring the operations of power and resistance at the micro level of the individual home and small community analysing modes of securitisation and fortification utilised in the interests of wealth and power and documenting the ways in which space and place are being transformed by changing socio economic and cultural demands As well as analysing the ways in which forms of exclusion and persecution are manifest spatially the chapters in this book also attend to the forms of resistance and contestation which emerge in response to them Resistance is found in the persistence of those who build and rebuild their homes and communities in a world which seems bent on their exclusion At the same time life on the peripheries can give rise to new conceptions of citizenship and public space as well as to new political demands which seek to re claim space and contest the dominant order Bringing together scholars working in fields as diverse as political science geography international studies cultural anthropology architecture political philosophy and the visual arts this book offers readers access to a range of contemporary case studies and theoretical perspectives Relevant timely and thoroughly accessible this text offers an integrated approach to what can be a dauntingly diverse area of study and will be of interest not only to those working in fields such as architecture political theory and geography but also to non specialists and students

Democracy and Public Space John R. Parkinson, 2012-01-26 In an online interconnected world democracy is increasingly made up of wikis and blogs pokes and tweets Citizens have become accidental journalists thanks to their handheld devices politicians are increasingly working online and the traditional sites of democracy assemblies public galleries and plazas are becoming less and less relevant with every new technology And yet this book argues such views are leading us to confuse the medium with the message focusing on electronic transmission when often what cyber citizens transmit is pictures and narratives of real democratic action in physical space Democratic citizens are embodied take up space battle over access to physical resources and perform democracy on physical stages at least as much as they engage with ideas in virtual space Combining conceptual analysis with interviews and observation in capital cities on every continent John Parkinson argues that democracy requires physical public space that some kinds of space are better for performing some democratic roles than others and that some of the most valuable kinds of space are under attack in developed democracies He argues that accidental publics like shoppers and lunchtime crowds are increasingly valued over purposive active publics over citizens with a point to make or an argument to listen to This can be seen not just in the way that traditional protest is regulated but in the ways that ordinary city streets and parks are managed even in the design of such quintessentially democratic spaces as legislative assemblies The book offers an alternative vision for democratic public space and evaluates 11 cities from London to Tokyo against that ideal

The Politics of Cultural Programming in Public Spaces Victoria Watts, Robert W. Gehl, 2010 Museum exhibits public music performances sports art festivals these events and spaces are truly immediate While media might be involved these phenomena are wholly different from broadcast mass media objects This text interrogates these events and spaces in order to discover the ways in which they affect subjectivity

Urban Public Spaces Lucia Capanema Alvares, Jorge Luiz Barbosa, 2018-02-23 This book is about understanding contextualizing and carrying out critical analyzes of the policies intended and or implemented by the various public and private actors in urban public spaces as well as the daily or eventual politics exercised by the organized civil society and by citizens It presents a collection of contributions about the public space in different theoretical conceptual and methodological approaches Coming from different disciplines the authors share an understanding about the need to analyze the uses and appropriations of the city by social subjects and groups as they represent difference and see the city as a place to share life experiences as such they argue through their cases studies that places of public use should be thought of and understood as concept and as social practice As an analytic tool the book offers a five dimension model to explore how people relate to daily life activities and confront imposed inequalities in their meeting places how they engage in individual and collective manifestations and or how they symbolically appropriate public spaces in face of the late capitalism led by large corporations and globalization Together the authors seek to contribute to a city of utopia where all differences can be seen and dealt with in public spaces and where free individuals can present themselves and engage in a vita activa

Unravelling Complexities Yvonne Franz, Christiane Hintermann, 2017 Public spaces are important places in city and urban life The functions ascribed to public space are broad ranging from political representation the possibility of political protest and demonstration to economic use such as street markets and the politics of memory They are also places where different expectations and interests are negotiated Public spaces are arenas of social life and interaction and an irreplaceable characteristic of the European city In the context of both a growing and increasingly diversified city and a neoliberal urban development model to what extent can the development processes that manifest in public space still be steered There are stark differences in the reception of public space its qualities and accessibility or lack of which lead to conflicts between different actors about the conditions of its use This publication provides a comprehensive overview on theoretical debates methodological approaches and implementation of public space analyses

Social Interactions in Urban Public Places Caroline Holland, 2007 This report examines how different people use public spaces and analyses how social interactions vary by age gender or place A free pdf version of this report is available online at www.jrf.org.uk

The Politics of Public Space, Volume 04 Lynda Roberts, Simona Castricum, Jock Gilbert, Sophia Pearce, Kim Dovey, Nigel Bertram, Crystal Legacy, Marcus Westbury, Elizabeth Taylor, 2021-05-31 Over four years OFFICE have curated a public lecture series titled The Politics of Public Space as part of their university teaching inviting speakers to present in and around Melbourne and more recently online Holding the series outside an institution has allowed these discussions to be directed at the city's spaces and the issues at stake in their development To preserve and disseminate these events OFFICE have compiled this quarterly publication as a document of the ideas that inform the city This collection of interviews and talks is the fourth and final volume in the series While past volumes asked many questions this collection of interviews and talks puts forward strategies for addressing some of the perceived inequities in the public domain Nigel Bertram and Kim Dovey's texts explore forms of protest preservation and civil disobedience within urban spaces Protest continues to be intrinsic to public discourse and by consequence how the city is preserved and developed In contrast These modes of resistance have their counterpart in discussions about policy making and planning For Lynda Roberts this is through revealing the political motivations behind the procurement of cultural artifacts and their deployment throughout the arts precinct Crystal Legacy outlines ideas of agonism and consensus planning in large scale infrastructure projects Marcus Westbury reflects on new forms of tenure in creating and running a public cultural institute and Elizabeth Taylor unpacks the political social and commercial motivations behind car parking What is clear is that each of these texts draws the attention of the series back to questions of how we experience cities As we have found in past volumes the city privileges certain demographics and bodies over others Simona Castricum reflects on the diverse experiences of gender non conforming trans and gender diverse people in public space And the final text an interview with Sophia Pearce and Jock Gilbert puts forward their understanding of Country and strategies for Indigenous and non indigenous people to work in collaboration Unpacking concepts of Story and deep listening and how they shape their projects

Return to the Center ,2006-05 The redesign and revitalization of traditional urban centers is the cutting edge of contemporary urban planning as evidenced by the intense public and professional attention to the rebuilding of city cores from Berlin to New York City s Ground Zero Spanish and Latin American cities have never received the recognition they deserve in the urban revitalization debate yet they offer a very relevant model for this return to the center These cultures have consistently embraced the notion of a city whose identity is grounded in its organic public spaces plazas promenades commercial streets and parks that invite pedestrian traffic and support a rich civic life This groundbreaking book explores Spanish Mexican and Mexican American border cities to learn what these urban areas can teach us about effectively using central public spaces to foster civic interaction neighborhood identity and a sense of place Herzog weaves the book around case studies of Madrid and Barcelona Spain Mexico City and Quer taro Mexico and the Tijuana San Diego border metropolis He examines how each of these urban areas was formed and grew through time with attention to the design lessons of key public spaces The book offers original and incisive discussions that challenge current urban thinking about politics and public space globalization and the future of privatized communities from gated suburbs to cyberspace Herzog argues that well designed human scaled city centers are still vitally necessary for maintaining community and civic life Applicable to urban renewal projects around the globe Herzog s book will be important reading for planners architects designers and all citizens interested in creating more livable cities
