Naur, 2013-03-14 Human knowing is examined as it emerges from classical empirical psychology with its ramifications into language computing science and scholarship While the discussion takes empirical support from a wide range claims for the significance of logic and rules are challenged throughout Highlights of the discussion knowing is a matter of habits or dispositions that guide the person's stream of consciousness rules of language have no significance in language production and understanding being descriptions of linguistic styles statements that may be true or false enter into ordinary linguistic activity not as elements of messages but merely as summaries of situations with a view to action in computer programming the significance of logic proof and formalized description is incidental and subject to the programmer's personality analysis of computer modelling of the mental activity shows that in describing human knowing the computer is irrelevant in accounting for the scholarly scientific activity logic and rules are impotent a novel theory scholarship and science have coherent descriptions as their core The discussion addresses questions that are basic to advanced applications of computers and to students of language and science Subject Catalog, 1979 Library of Congress, 1979
