Songs by Alec Wilder Were Made to Sing Alec Wilder, 1976 Alec Wilder in Spite of Himself Desmond Stone, 1996-04-25 Alec Wilder wrote songs and lyrics of unsurpassed beauty and originality and his work won the respect and admiration of such important musical figures as Frank Sinatra Peggy Lee Mitch Miller Gunther Schuller and many others Yet Wilder seemed almost to court obscurity Both in the music he composed and in the way he lived his life Wilder valued the unique and eccentric over the established and easily acceptable And though he authored the definitive American Popular Song which critics praised as singular Studs Terkel pioneering Whitney Balliett rewarding Milton Babbitt and a joy to anyone who really cares about American popular music Max Morath his own contribution to that music has remained until now too little known and far too little appreciated Desmond Stone's engaging and lively biography brings Alec Wilder's life and music into the spotlight where it belongs Ranging from Wilder's childhood in Rochester New York to his rise as a major writer of popular songs in the 1940s to his relationships with Frank Sinatra and the cabaret singer Mabel Mercer Stone gives us rich insight into the creative process and profound influence of this highly unorthodox composer We see the impulses and musical concerns that led to such standards as I'll Be Around and It's So Peaceful in the Country We also get an inside view of how he wrote his monumental American Popular Song which remains the most significant study of America's great songwriters More important we get a vivid sense of a haunting incorruptible melodist whose unique personality was mirrored in his music Man and composer dared to be different When Wilder in the late 1930s wrote his famous Octets the music world did not know what to make of these irreverent highly original pieces Yet they had a seminal influence on jazz chamber music in America Wilder would go on to compose hundreds of instrumental numbers Whether he was writing concert pieces for an unprecedented and highly unusual group of instruments or mixing jazz classical and popular idioms in a single song or dashing off a sonata for a friend Wilder followed the dictates of his own creativity rather than the expectations of the musical establishment Such independence and unpredictability earned him the hostility of many critics but the enduring respect of the musicians he wrote for Here then is a fascinating private portrait of a man who lived a nomad's life who loved riding trains so much he kept a timetable in his pocket at all times a man whose only home was a small room he maintained at the Algonquin Hotel in Manhattan where he often held court in the lobby a man with a serious drinking problem as well as the kindest and most generous of friends Essential reading for anyone interested in American popular music Alec Wilder in Spite of Himself provides a much needed account of this complex colorful and highly original life Songs by Alec Wilder were made to sing Alec Wilder, 1976 Catalog of Copyright Entries Library of Congress. The Man That Got Away Walter Rimler, 2015-09-15 Over the Rainbow Stormy

Weather and One for My Baby are just a few of Harold Arlen's well-loved compositions. Yet his name is hardly known except to the musicians who venerate him. At a gathering of songwriters, George Gershwin called him the best of us. Irving Berlin agreed. Paul McCartney sent him a fan letter and became his publisher. Bob Dylan wrote of his fascination with Arlen's bittersweet, lonely world. A cantor's son, Arlen believed his music was from a place outside himself, a place that also sent tragedy. When his wife became mentally ill and was institutionalized, he turned to alcohol. It nearly killed him. But the beautiful songs kept coming: Blues in the Night, My Shining Hour, Come Rain or Come Shine, and The Man That Got Away. Walter Rimler drew on interviews with friends and associates of Arlen and on newly available archives to write this intimate portrait of a genius whose work is a pillar of the Great American Songbook.

Show and Tell John Lahr, 2002. What a talented, wonderful and complete writer Mel Brooks. By far the best thing about my stuff I've ever read. Arthur Miller. These are wonderful portraits. Edna O'Brien. The high water mark of theatrical reportage. Exhilarating. Smart. Lahr gives as much thunderous pleasure as the great entertainers he writes about. Richard Avedon. There's never been an American critic like John Lahr. His writing exalts, honors and dignifies the profession and more importantly, the art. Tony Kushner.

Making History Matter Robert Dawidoff, 2000. This collection of Robert Dawidoff's essays and journalism is peopled by the likes of the Founding Fathers: Fred Astaire, Henry and William James, Sophie Tucker, Trent Lott, and Cole Porter. Drawing together this unlikely cast of characters, Dawidoff probes into the role of outsider groups as well as intellectual and political elites in the formation of American culture. As a scholar of intellectual and cultural history, Dawidoff takes the stance that historians ought to take an active role in our democratic culture, informing and participating in public discourse. He argues for a broad reach when it comes to cultural expression, resisting the polarization of formal intellectual history and folk or commercial popular culture. In his view, and in his book, Ralph Waldo Emerson and Katharine Hepburn are equally worthy topics for a historian's consideration, providing that they are treated with equal seriousness of purpose and analytic rigor. In The Gay Nineties section that closes the book, he traces key events in the continual struggle for gay and lesbian civil rights and takes on such unresolved issues as safer sex, needle exchange programs to control HIV transmission, and the public controversy around the portrayal of gay and lesbian television characters. Divided into sections that deal with the patriarchs of American political and intellectual culture, expressive culture, and a historian's public voice, this book is a model of engaged and engaging writing. Accessible and witty, Making History Matter will appeal to general and academic readers interested in American history as well as gay and lesbian political and cultural issues.

Author note: Robert Dawidoff is John D. and Lillian Maguire Distinguished Chair and Professor of History at Claremont Graduate University. He is most recently the author, with Michael Nava, of Created Equal: Why Gay Rights Matter to America and The Genteel Tradition and the Sacred Rage: High Culture vs. Democracy in Adams, James, and Santayana.

The Poets of Tin Pan Alley Philip Furia, Laurie J.
