Chinese Euphonics Jeffrey R. Tharsen, 2024-12-30 What did Old Chinese prose sound like Supported by digital texts modern technologies and historical linguistics Chinese Euphonics is a deep dive into the types of sound patterns that occur throughout the earliest corpora of narrative texts in the Chinese canon the Western Zhou bronze inscriptions the Classic of Documents and the Zuo Commentary to the Spring and Autumn Annals Tharsen demonstrates how sound patterns in the speeches preserved in these foundational texts functioned in concert with form and meaning to create phonorhetoric a tactic employed by some of the most eminent figures from Chinese antiquity to beautify and strengthen their arguments and ideas by making use of extensive phonological patterning and the power of sound Containing both a broad history of the study of prose rhyming and a wealth of new evidence Chinese Euphonics lays the groundwork for a new and more comprehensive approach to the study of early Chinese texts The Historical Jesus of the Gospels Craig S. Keener, 2012-04-13 The earliest substantive sources available for historical Jesus research are in the Gospels themselves when interpreted in their early Jewish setting their picture of Jesus is more coherent and plausible than are the competing theories offered by many modern scholars So argues Craig Keener in The Historical Jesus of the Gospels In exploring the depth and riches of the material found in the Synoptic Gospels Keener shows how many works on the historical Jesus emphasize just one aspect of the Jesus tradition against others but a much wider range of material in the Jesus tradition makes sense in an ancient Jewish setting Keener masterfully uses a broad range of evidence from the early Jesus traditions and early Judaism to reconstruct a fuller

Music in the Words: Musical Form and Counterpoint in the Twentieth-Century Novel Alan Shockley, 2017-07-05 There is a strong tradition of literary analyses of the musical artwork. Simply put, all musicology and any writing about music is an attempt at making analogies between what happens within the world of sound and language itself. This study considers this analogy from the opposite perspective: authors attempting to structure words using musical forms and techniques. It's a viewpoint much more rarely explored, and none of the extant studies of novelists' musical techniques have been done by musicians. Can a novel follow the form of a symphony and still succeed as a novel? Can musical counterpoint be mimicked by words on a page? Alan Shockley begins looking for answers by examining music's appeal for novelists and then explores two brief works: a prose fugue by Douglas Hofstadter and a short story by Anthony Burgess modeled after a Mozart symphony. Analyses of three large emblematic attempts at musical writing follow. The much-debated Sirens episode of James Joyce's Ulysses, which the author famously likened to a fugue; Burgess largely ignored Napoleon Symphony; and A Novel in Four Movements patterned on Beethoven's Eroica and Joyce's Finnegans Wake, which Shockley examines as an attempt at composing a fully musicalized language. After these three larger analyses, Shockley discusses two quite recent brief novels: William Gaddis' novella Agap Gape and David Markson's This is not a novel, proposing that each of these confounding texts coheres elegantly when viewed as a musically structured work. From the perspective of a composer, Shockley offers the reader fresh tools for approaching these dense and often daunting texts. John Wallis:

Writings on Music Dr. David Cram, Dr. Benjamin Wardhaugh, 2014-10-28 John Wallis 1616-1703 was one of the foremost British mathematicians of the seventeenth century and is also remembered for his important writings on grammar and logic. An interest in music theory led him to produce translations into Latin of three ancient Greek texts: those of Ptolemy, Porphyry, and Bryennius, and involved him in discussions with Henry Oldenburg, the Secretary of the Royal Society, Thomas Salmon, and others as his ideas developed. The texts presented here cover the relationship of ancient and modern tuning theory, the building of organs, the phenomena of resonance, and other musical topics. Immersion, Identification, and the Iliad

Jonathan L. Ready, 2023-06-27 This is an open access title available under the terms of a CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 International licence. It is free to read at Oxford Scholarship Online and offered as a free PDF download from OUP and selected open access locations. Immersion, Identification, and the Iliad explains why people care about this foundational epic poem and its characters. It represents the first book-length application to the Iliad of research in communications, literary studies, media studies, and psychology on how readers of a story or viewers of a play, movie, or television show find themselves immersed in the tale and identify with the characters. Immersed recipients get wrapped up in a narrative and the world it depicts and lose track to some degree of their real-world surroundings. Identification occurs when recipients interpret the storyworld from a character's perspective, feel emotions congruent with those of the character, and root for the character to succeed. This volume situates modern research on these experiences in relation to ancient criticism on how audiences react to narratives. It then offers close readings of select episodes and detailed analyses of recurring features to show how the Iliad immerses both ancient and modern recipients and encourages them to identify with its characters Accessible to students and researchers to those inside and outside of classical studies this interdisciplinary project aligns research on the Iliad with contemporary approaches to storyworlds in a range of media It thereby opens new frontiers in the study of ancient Greek literature and helps investigators of audience engagement from antiquity to the present contextualize and historicize their own work
