Children and Cultural Memory in Texts of Childhood Heather Snell, Lorna Hutchison, 2013-11-07 The essays in this collection address the relationship between children and cultural memory in texts both for and about young people The collection overall is concerned with how cultural memory is shaped, contested, forgotten, recovered, and re-circulated, sometimes in opposition to dominant national narratives and often for the benefit of young readers who are assumed not to possess any prior cultural memory From the innovative development of school libraries in the 1920s to the role of utopianism in fixing cultural memory for teen readers, it provides a critical look into children and ideologies of childhood as they are represented in a broad spectrum of texts including film, poetry, literature, and architecture from Canada, the United States, Japan, Germany, Britain, India, and Spain These cultural forms collaborate to shape ideas and values in turn contributing to dominant discourses about national and global citizenship The essays included in the collection imply that childhood is an oft-imagined idealist construction based in large part on participation, identity, and perception childhood is invisible and tangible, exciting and intriguing, and at times elusive even as cultural and literary artifacts recreate it Children and Cultural Memory in Texts of Childhood is a valuable resource for scholars of children's literature and culture, readers interested in childhood and ideology, and those working in the fields of diaspora and postcolonial studies

Laura Ingalls Wilder and Rose Wilder Lane John E. Miller, 2008-12-03 The mother-daughter partnership that produced the Little House books has fascinated scholars and readers alike Now John E. Miller, one of America's leading authorities on Laura Ingalls Wilder and Rose Wilder Lane, combines analyses of both women to explore this collaborative process and shows how their books reflect the authors' distinctive views of place, time, and culture Along the way he addresses the two most controversial issues for Wilder Lane aficionados how much did Lane actually contribute to the writing of the Little House books and what was Wilder's real attitude toward American Indians Interpreting these writers in their larger historical and cultural contexts Miller reconsiders their formidable artistic political and literary contributions to American cultural life in the 1930s He looks at what was happening in 1932 from depression conditions and politics to chain stores and celebrity culture to shed light on Wilder's life and he shows how actual little houses established ideas of home that resonated emotionally for both writers In considering each woman's ties to history Miller compares Wilder with Frederick Jackson Turner as a frontier mythmaker and examines Lane's unpublished history of Missouri in the context of a contemporaneous project Thomas Hart Benton's famous Jefferson City mural He also looks at Wilder's Missouri Ruralist columns to assess her pre Little House values and writing skills and he readdresses her literary treatment of Native Americans A final chapter shows how Wilder's and Lane's conservative political views found expression in their work separating Lane's more libertarian bent from Wilder's focus on writing moralist children's fiction These nine thoughtful essays expand the critical discussion on Wilder and Lane beyond the Little House Miller portrays them as impassioned and dedicated writers who were deeply involved in the historical changes and political challenges of their times and contends that questions over the books authorship do not do justice to either woman's creative investment in the series Miller demystifies the aura of nostalgia that often prevents modern readers from seeing Wilder as a real life woman and he depicts Lane as a kindred artistic spirit helping readers better understand mother and daughter as both women and authors

Patriotic History and the (Re)Nationalization of Memory Kornelia Kończal, A. Dirk Moses, 2023-06-27 This book charts and traces state mandated or state encouraged patriotic histories that have recently emerged in many places around the globe Such patriotic histories can revolve around both affirmative interpretations of the past and celebration of national achievements They can also entail explicitly denialist stances against acknowledging responsibility for past atrocities even to the extent of celebrating perpetrators Whereas in some cases patriotic history takes the shape of a coherent doctrine in others they remain limited to loosely connected narratives By combining nationalist and narcissist narratives and by disregarding or distorting historical evidence patriotic history promotes mythified monumental and moralistic interpretations of the past that posit partisan and authoritarian essentialisms and exceptionalisms Whereas the global debates in interdisciplinary memory studies revolve around concepts like cosmopolitan global multidirectional relational transcultural and transnational memory to mention but a few the actual socio political uses of history remain strikingly nation centred and one dimensional This volume collects fifteen case studies of such nationalizations of history ranging from China to the Baltic states They highlight three features of this phenomenon the ruthlessness of methods applied by many state authorities to impose certain interpretations of the past the increasing discrepancy between professional and political approaches to collective memory and the new post truth context This book will be of interest to students and researchers of international politics the radical right and global history It was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Genocide Research
