The Complete Guide to Potty Training Theo Williams,2020-10-02 Potty training might seem like a daunting task but if your child truly ready there's nothing to worry about Let's go on and one day your child will just do it Naturally most children still have plenty of time but ditching the diapers On one of the biggest When you start potty training your toddler Then we're actually very far every child When you have a baby you're knee deep in diapers They're tucked into your bag Stuck in the crib Stuck in the box under the bed You might even have a few stashed in the glove compartment of your car just in case of an emergency for so long that they're not needing them anymore It's like the day when your child will walk into the bathroom or walk into the kitchen without you knowing it is a long way off And yet today is morning And the big breakthrough has been in your dream Between now and then there's a big project potty training or the growth of the transition You must be able to make the transition but ultimately Understanding a child is a new skill for your child to learn It's best to take it slow and go at your child's pace Bring them with them will help them get through the fun time feel frustrated Children are able to control their bladder and bowels when they're all ready and when they want to be independent Every child is different not the best not to mix your child with their friends Your routine must be consistent instead of your eagerness let them try to equate potty training success or defeat with your child's behavior or punishment has no role in this Plan the potty training for when your child is ready and can do it with time and energy to be consistent on a daily basis for a few months Don't get into the matter It might be a prospective study of 8000 children found that the kids who started training at 24 months were at higher risk for learning slow regression Perhaps the children who started later in their lives had a constant need for the toilet training method might not matter When a retrospective study compared child-led training and gradual routine led training researchers found no difference in the rate of toilet training and fun time in voiding
