A Survey of the Islamic Sites Near Aden and in the Abyan District of Yemen Geoffrey King, Christina Tonghini, 2005-08-31 This volume provides a brief historical and geographical background to the district of Abyan in the Yemen followed by a description of the sites identified during the 1994 excavations of sites from the Islamic period carried out by a team from the School of Oriental and African Studies The final section of the book details the archaeological finds mainly pottery and ceramics made during this research and with the aid of maps photographs and diagrams indicates where each find was made and the significance of the various pieces

Landscapes of the Islamic World Stephen McPhillips, Paul D. Wordsworth, 2016-05-13 Islamic societies of the past have often been characterized as urban with rural and other extra urban landscapes cast in a lesser or supporting role in the studies of Islamic history and archaeology Yet throughout history the countryside was frequently an engine of economic activity the setting for agricultural and technological innovation and its inhabitants were frequently agents of social and political change The Islamic city is increasingly viewed in the context of long and complex processes of urban development Archaeological evidence calls for an equally nuanced reading of shifting cultural and religious practices in rural areas after the middle of the seventh century Landscapes of the Islamic World presents new work by twelve authors on the archaeology history and ethnography of the Islamic world in the Middle East the Arabian Peninsula and Central Asia The collection looks beyond the city to engage with the predominantly rural and pastoral character of premodern Islamic society Editors Stephen McPhillips and Paul D Wordsworth group the essays into four thematic sections harnessing and living with water agriculture pastoralism and rural subsistence commerce production and the rural economy and movement and memory in the rural landscape Each contribution addresses aspects of extra urban life in challenging new ways blending archaeological material culture textual sources and ethnography to construct holistic studies of landscapes Modern agrarian practices and population growth have accelerated the widespread destruction of vast tracts of ancient medieval and early modern landscapes highlighting the urgency of scholarship in this field This book makes an original and important contribution to a growing subject area and represents a step toward a more inclusive understanding of the historical landscapes of Islam Contributors Pernille Bangsgaard Karin Bartl Jennie N Bradbury Robin M Brown Alison L Gascoigne Ian W N Jones Phillip G Macumber Daniel Mahoney Stephen McPhillips Astrid Meier David C Thomas Bethany J Walker Alan Walmsley Tony J Wilkinson Paul D Wordsworth Lisa Yeomans

Aden and the Indian Ocean Trade Roxani Eleni Margariti, 2012-09-01 Positioned at the crossroads of the maritime routes linking the Indian Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea the Yemeni port of Aden grew to be one of the medieval world's greatest commercial hubs Approaching Aden's history between the eleventh and thirteenth centuries through the prism of overseas trade and commercial culture Roxani Eleni Margariti examines the ways in which physical space and urban institutions developed to serve and harness the commercial potential presented by the city's strategic location Utilizing historical and archaeological methods Margariti draws together a rich variety of sources far beyond the normative and relatively accessible legal rulings issued by Islamic courts of the time She explores environmental material and textual data including merchants testimonies from the medieval documentary repository known as the Cairo Geniza Her analysis brings the port city to life detailing its fortifications water supply harbor customs house marketplaces and ship building facilities She also provides a broader picture of the history of the city and the ways merchants and administrators regulated and fostered trade Margariti ultimately demonstrates how port cities as nodes of exchange communication and interconnectedness are crucial in Indian Ocean and Middle Eastern history as well as Islamic and Jewish history
