Sustainable Management Of Tropical Rain Forest In Uganda:

Sustainable Management of Tropical Rain Forest in Uganda Peter K. Karani, 1994 This volume traces the development of tropical forest management in Uganda It is part of a series intended to assist a wider understanding of the historical basis to the new directions and policy initiatives now being taken in the countries concerned The report provides a clear account of forest management during the period up to independence in 1962 the development of management systems such as the tropical shelterwood system and assesses the current position before looking to the future Conservation and Management of Tropical Rainforests, 2nd Edition Eberhard F Bruenig, 2016-12-07 This new edition of Conservation and Management of Tropical Rainforests applies the large body of knowledge experience and tradition available to those who study tropical rainforests Revised and updated in light of developments in science technology economics politics etc and their effects on tropical forests it describes the principles of integrated conservation and management that lead to sustainability identifying the unifying phenomena that regulate the processes within the rainforest and that are fundamental to the ecosystem viability Features of the natural forest and the socio cultural ecosystems which can be mimicked in the design of self sustaining forests are also discussed A holistic approach to the management and conservation of rainforests is developed throughout the book The focus on South East Asian forestry will be widened to include Africa and Latin America Recent controversial issues such as biofuels and carbon credits with respect to tropical forests and their inhabitants will be discussed This book is a substantial contribution to the literature it is a valuable resource for all those concerned with rainforests Dipterocarp Forest Ecosystems: Towards Sustainable Management Andreas Schulte, D

Schone, 1996-07-30 The Dipterocarp forests of South East Asia constitute a dominant component of the world's tropical forests As such they are intertwined with a Pandora's box of problems that have plagued the world for decades Over and underdevelopment poverty hunger population growth exploitation of natural resources environmental degradation loss of biodiversity the debt crisis and of late climate change The world community has responded to the crucial role of these forests and the dangers facing them with funds and a myriad of programmers projects institutions conferences and networks Apparently neither a lack of knowledge nor finance constrains the dissipation of sustainable management practices the fate of the world's Dipterocarp forests will certainly depend on the involvement of scientists from many nations and disciplines but will perhaps ultimately rest with local policymakers forest administrators and line foresters Unfortunately these two groups rarely share realms readings or reasoning practical foresters invariably very involved with the challenges of day to day forest management in remote isolated environments may long remain oblivious to scientific developments Traditionally though they do find solutions to problems gain deep insights into forest responses and practical constraints and sometimes even report in semi obscure publications which rarely reach the scientific circuit The editors of the book both experienced forest and soil scientists and practical forest managers have attempted to bridge the gap between the realms of forest science and practice in Dipterocarp ecology management and utilization The Conservation Atlas of Tropical Forests Jeffrey Sayer,1992-06-18 Recognizing that sound information is vital to the progress of conservation IUCN have gathered together a visual portfolio of maps of rain forests in Africa The accompanying text analyzes the extent and causes of deforestation and points a way towards sustainable forest development Timber Production and Biodiversity Conservation in Tropical Rain Forests Andrew Grieser Johns,1997-07-10 How timber production and tropical biodiversity conservation can be balanced Tropical Forest Conservation and Industry Partnership Connie J. Clark,John R. Poulsen,2012-04-23 Historically the conservation of forests and wildlife has focused on the creation of national parks and reserves However only 9% of protected areas are larger than 14 000 hectares likely making them too small to conserve ecosystem services and prevent loss of wide ranging keystone species such as elephant and leopard New approaches are needed that extend conservation beyond protected area boundaries into areas where economic considerations prevail The book describes one such emerging model of conservation the integration of the private sector into partnerships to protect biodiversity and improve forest management While such partnerships are being created in nearly every sector of resource extraction detailed analyses of how such partnerships work and whether they benefit biodiversity conservation are rare Using a case study from the Congo Basin the book examines principles of conservation and partnership and provides technical and methodological details to replicate an innovative conservation model It presents concrete solutions for expanding conservation across multi use landscapes a necessary action as industry expands to all the corners of the globe

Achieving the Sustainable Management of Forests Alastair Fraser,2019-04-26 This book discusses the reality of implementing sustainable forest management measures Rather than simply offering theoretical descriptions the book comprehensively details how sustainably managed forests can only be achieved through the cooperation and support of foresters politicians business leaders local communities consumers of forest based goods and services and the general public The book also aims to raise public awareness of the factors involved in attaining the true sustainability of forest management and the consequences of failing to do so as well as the current issues facing sustainable forest management such as land ownership and land use rights political corruption environmental stressors and economic pressure In 17 chapters the book will appeal to academics and teachers in forestry and related areas government practitioners development agencies and NGOs Wildlife and Protected Area Management Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,1997 ,
