Sustaining Forests A Development Strategy:

Sustaining Forests World Bank, 2004-05-01 The World Bank's Forests Strategy adopted in October 2002 charts a path for the Bank's proactive engagement in the sector to help attain the goal of poverty reduction without jeopardizing the environmental values intrinsic to sustainability This strategy replaces the Bank's 1991 Forestry Strategy and was developed on the basis of the findings of an independent review of the 1991 strategy and a two year consultative process with development partners and stakeholders around the world The revised strategy Sustaining Forests is built on three guiding pillars harnessing the potential of forests to reduce poverty integrating forests into sustainable economic development and protecting global forest values Recognizing the key role forests play in contributing to the livelihoods of people living in extreme poverty government and local ownership of forest policies and interventions are emphasized along with the development of appropriate institutions to ensure good governance and the mainstreaming of forests into national development planning The strategy also aims to support ecologically socially and economically sound management of production forests by ensuring good management practices through application of safeguard procedures and independent monitoring and certification Implementation of the strategy will center on building and strengthening partnerships with the private sector non governmental organizations and other donor agencies to promote better forest conservation and management at country and global levels Sustaining Forests, 2004 State of the World 2009 Linda

Starke, Worldwatch Institute, 2009 The Worldwatch Institute's State of the World 2009 is a comprehensive guide to global warming and the steps necessary to combat it Sustaining Indonesia's Forests, 2006 Forests of Southeast Europe

Under a Changing Climate Mirjana Šijačić-Nikolić, Jelena Milovanović, Marina Nonić, 2018-12-05 This book integrates the different prospective scientific and practical experience of researchers as well as beneficiaries and stakeholders in the field of forest conservation in Southeast Europe The book stresses the importance of improving the adaptability of these ecosystems to the impacts of climate change Gathered around a common idea the book presents the latest results in forest genetic resources conservation at national and regional level The chapters are written by experts from Bosnia and Herzegovina Bulgaria Croatia FYR Macedonia Greece Montenegro Romania Serbia and Slovenia The book presents the current state legal and institutional framework for conservation and management of forest genetic resources case studies and best practices in the application of different conservation methods and techniques in situ and ex situ as well as climate change aspects in this area This book will be of particular interest to scientists and experts in the field of forestry environmental protection and rural development bachelor master and doctoral students as well as for anyone interested in the conservation issues fuelled by ethical and economic motives Sustainable Forest Management in a Changing

World: a European Perspective Peter Spathelf, 2009-12-04 Yet another book on the topic of Sustainable Forest Management can only be justified by new information that is of direct relevance The contents of this volume concentrate on the very latest factors and developments thus hopefully contributing both to the book's attractiveness and to closing gaps in the discipline's database. This book is written for researchers in the field of forest management, international forestry and climate change related issues, legal and policy advisors as well as for managers of private companies who deal with SFM. The authors of the various sections are scientists in the field of forestry and other environmental sciences. They represent different institutions, mainly universities and research agencies in Germany but also high level international institutions in development co-operation such as the World Bank, FAO and IIASA. The scope of the book is to refresh the meanings and perceptions of SFM against the background of the rapid changes in our natural and social environment. Climate change and the rapid increase of atmospheric CO<sub>2</sub> concentration is a global process with negative impacts of different kinds among others on natural ecosystems such as forests. A crucial issue therefore is how forest management can contribute to forest conservation in light of changing climatic conditions. Moreover, policy changes such as the introduction of certification schemes and the new emphasis laid on Non Wood Forest Products justify the re-evaluation of the role of SFM in delivering ecological goods and services from our forests.

Sustainable Agriculture, Forest and Environmental Management Manoj Kumar Jhariya, Arnab Banerjee, Ram Swaroop Meena, Dhiraj Kumar Yadav, 2019-05-28

The recent technologies for sustainable development and maintaining ecological integrity in the field of agriculture, forestry and environmental management for the green future. Describes the recent technologies and issues to generate awareness among the global scientific community towards sustainable development. Covers various eco-friendly approaches for successful management of soil, water, forest, agriculture and other natural resources. Addresses the policy issues promoting conservation, protection and management of various natural resources. Presents the issues of climate change and sustainable strategies to combat such a mega event. The existence of life on the earth primarily depends upon the agriculture, forest and environment. The changing climate is imposing the multifaceted challenges in front of human civilization. The agroecosystem management practices and technologies lead to higher productivity with destruction of agricultural forest and environmental habitat leading to soil, water, air pollution. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) plays a key role in the promoting research and developmental activities in various sectors to achieve the sustainable development goals under 2030 agenda. Gradual growth of science and technology has imposed a significant pressure on the different ecosystem. In this context, approaches such as sustainable agriculture, forestry and eco-friendly technologies need to be addressed across the world. Keeping view of these facts, this book underlines scientific chapters dealing with the issues with proper explanation and accompanied by illustrative diagrams, tables, database as required. The editors have tried to provide a brief scenario about the current issues related to the agriculture, forestry and environment. Therefore, the book would be a very useful resource for academicians, scientists and policy makers of the related field.

The Future of the World's Forests Jim Douglas, Markku Simula, 2010-09-05

landmark 1992 United Nations Conference on Environment and Development Earth Summit solemn resolutions were made both to protect the world's biodiversity and to co-operate on managing natural forests in a sustainable and ecologically responsible way. If anything, given recent developments in issues such as climate change and poverty, the problem of protecting and sustaining forests should logically have become more important globally. Yet public interest in and development support for forest activities have declined and rates of forest loss remain stubbornly high. Why has this happened? This book seeks answers to this question. It examines the often dysfunctional relationships between various members of the international forest constituency which have so often prevented the formation of consensus. It also explores the tendency to pursue technical and politically convenient fixes focused on the internal workings of the forest sector while ignoring the overwhelming influence of external forces on the fate of forests. The result all too often has been programs which benefit a few powerful players and fail to provide real solutions. The book provides a new examination of and perspective on the international forest policy debate. It clarifies the reasons for global forest conflicts and provides insight for future policy development. Including examples from both the developed and developing world, it provides an invaluable resource for researchers and graduate students in forest policy and international relations as well as a useful reference for policymakers and professionals in the forest sector, the development community and conservationists. With significant global attention now focused on reducing carbon emissions from deforestation and forest degradation (REDD), the authors examine the promise and the potential problems that apply to this initiative.

Sustaining the Forests of the Pacific Coast Debra Salazar, Donald K. Alper, 2011-11-01

Forests define the Pacific Coast in many ways. Culturally they are part of the traditions of the First Nations; economically they have sustained an industry that has created settlements and wealth throughout the area. In the last twenty years, the forests have become the subject of increasing conflict as economic interests clash with changing social and political values. The war in the woods has escalated, hardening battle lines and polarizing forest politics. In this thoughtful collection of essays edited by Debra J. Salazar and Donald K. Alper, forest policy in the U.S. Pacific Northwest and British Columbia is examined in a binational context. While U.S. and Canadian forest policy and forest management approaches differ, the two countries face similar challenges and conflicts. Contributors discuss the evolution of forest exploitation, the response of timber companies to U.S. federal environmental regulations, sovereignty for First Nations communities, and the reshaping of the political economy of forests by global forces on both sides of the border. Groups usually ignored in the forest policy debate, such as First Nations peoples, workers in the emerging non-forest economy, and citizen activists, are also given voice in this fascinating compilation. The contributors to Sustaining the Forests of the Pacific Coast offer new perspectives that recognize the complexity of the issues and the diversity of interests in forest politics. A valuable contribution to the ongoing debate over forest policy on both sides of the Canada-U.S. border, these essays analyze the challenges facing forest policy makers and open the discussion up to those whose voices have not been heard before.
