

Surrogate's Court/Hall of Records: A Public Treasure

Hall of Records from City Hall Park, February 8, 1938

Sculptors Philip Martiny and Henry Kirke Bush-Brown provided the exterior sculptural elements, and William de Leftwich Dodge designed the stunning entrance mosaics and lunette murals. Reflecting the dual purpose of the building, on the western side of the entrance is "Searching the Records" on the eastern side is "Widows and Orphans Pleading before the Magistrate of the Surrogate's Court." The Art Commission (now called the Design Commission) exerted its new power over all elements of the design and rejected many of the submission drawings.

The central staircase in the atrium is made entirely of Siena marble from Tuscany and is probably modeled after the grand staircase of the Parisian opera house the Palais Garnier. Fay Kellogg, a young architect on Thomas' staff and one of the few female architects then working in the country, is credited with its design. Unsurprisingly, she had just returned from Paris.

The courtrooms on the fifth floor are for the New York County Surrogate's Court. The southern courtroom is finished in Mahogany from the Dominican Republic. The northern courtroom is finished in English Oak. Both have elaborate carvings by artist Bruno Louis Zimm, and large Tiffany chandeliers.

Remington & Sherman, primarily a safe company, not only designed the metal and wooden furniture for the building, they also designed the bronze light fixtures, fireplace panels and cast-iron radiator and duct gratings. The grates are part of an elaborate system to pump cool air from the moat surrounding the building to the upper floors—an early form of air conditioning. In the basement a steam power plant provided heat and electricity for the whole building as well as City Hall and the Brooklyn Bridge for a time.

Changing tastes in architecture and city planning almost doomed the building in the 1960s. Several plans for a new civic center, as far back as the late 1920s, proposed demolishing all the buildings on Chambers Street from Centre Street to Broadway. In 1961 the eastern entrance to the building was lopped off during widening of Centre Street, but four years later the passage of the Landmarks Preservation law saved the building from further insult. It is now listed as a New York City exterior and interior landmark and as a National Historic Landmark.

The Surrogate's Court/Hall of Records is one of the most magnificent public buildings in New York. Few people today realize that it was originally designed to be a new City Hall. When demolition of City Hall was forbidden by State Law, the design was repurposed as a new Hall of Records. The old Hall of Records in City Hall Park was a converted Revolutionary War-era prison that was then in disrepair and considered a firetrap. The new Hall of Records took eight years to build, from 1899 to 1907, and cost 7.8 million dollars (equivalent to $250 million today). It was designed by John Rochester Thomas, a prominent architect who unfortunately died in 1901 soon after the cornerstone was laid. The architectural firm of Horgan & Slattery then took over and made alterations to the interior to satisfy the original tenants: the City Register, the County Clerk, the Surrogates' Court, Corporation Counsel, City Chamberlain, and the Department of Taxes and Assessments. The Corporation Counsel and Tax Department moved to the Municipal Building in 1917. Throughout the building, fireproof design was emphasized: the construction is largely of brick, marble and stone, with custom built faux-wood steel cabinets for records.

Douglas Hunter, 2025-05-01 Here's a small press book that sets out to revitalize the history of Canada's Great Lakes steamships and is wonderfully successful. Exhaustively researched, the book sets new standards for works on Great Lakes shipwrecks. Ken McGoogan. At 4 a.m. on Saturday 22 November 1879, the 135-foot freight and passenger steamer Waubuno left Collingwood, Ontario, on her last run of the season to Parry Sound on eastern Georgian Bay. Engulfed by a snowstorm, she never arrived. Not a single body was recovered. There was never a government enquiry despite widespread calls for one. The steamer's loss is a dramatic mystery and more a tale of politics and influence of regulatory failures of Great Lakes storms, shipwrecks, and navigation hazards and of a widow's determination to hold a vessel's owners accountable for the loss of her husband. The full story of this nautical disaster and of the disasters that immediately followed involving the same ship owners is told by one of Canada's most accomplished authors after sixteen years of research in archives and on the waters in which the Waubuno was lost. For anyone interested in not only the mystery of the Waubuno but also the history of Great Lakes shipping and other losses like the Simcoe and Asia, Frightful Disaster is a must-read. As well, the effort of Emma Fisher to hold the Waubuno's owner's accountable for the loss of her husband, Parry Sound North Star publisher and editor Baptist Noel Fisher, resulted in two sensational trials now forgotten involving some of the finest lawyers of the time. Frightful Disaster reveals perjury, witness theft, evidence tampering, unrecognized allegiances between witnesses and defendants, and even political debts of the presiding judge. Frightful Disaster is extensively illustrated with more than 100 archival images, photos, and original maps by the author. The book is designed by the author, who has enjoyed a longstanding career in graphic design and illustration and has previously packaged his own books for leading publishers including Penguin Canada and W.W. Norton.
