A major part of giving pertinent information is affairs.

[14] The programme often consists of introductory a foundation that describes the development of medical products, research, development process and the regulatory oversight of the complex processes. There are both part-time and full-time courses available for the subject.[15] Part-time courses are suitable for the professional who will come across these terms occasionally where as full-time course is meant for the professional who intends to make his career in the regulatory affairs.[16]

Institutions in India offering Regulatory Affairs: In India huge amount of colleges and universities throughout offer the course of regulatory affairs. The course material is also available in the form of online, distance learning and interactive CDs mode. Regulatory affairs position is in highest demand and fastest growing according to the findings from a recent survey on employment trends in the clinical trials.[17] A pharmaceutical Regulatory affair (RA) is a vast area, which cannot be taught just with the help of books or the course materials. The issues related to the field are often updated so the professionals find it challenging to keep abreast with the recent modifications and inclusions[18]. Importance of Regulatory Affairs. In today's competitive environment the reduction of the time taken to reach the market is critical to a product's and hence the company's success. The proper conduct of its Regulatory Affairs (RA) activities is therefore of considerable economic importance for the company.[19] Inadequate reporting of data may prevent a timely positive evaluation of a marketing application. A new drug may have cost many millions of pounds, Euros or dollars to develop and even a three-month delay in bringing it to the market has considerable financial considerations.[20]

Failure to fully report all the available data or the release of product bearing incorrect labeling, may easily result in the need for a product recall may lead to the loss of several millions of units of sales, not to mention the resulting reduction in confidence of the investors, health professionals and patients.[21] A good Regulatory Affairs professional will have a 'right first time' approach and will play a very important part in coordinating scientific Endeavour with regulatory demands throughout the life of the product, helping to maximize the cost-effective use of the company's resources.[22] The Regulatory Affairs department is very often the first point of contact between the government authorities and the company. The attitudes and actions of the Regulatory Affairs (RA) professionals will condition the perceptions of the government officials to the company for better.[23] The importance of the Regulatory Affairs function is such that senior Regulatory Affairs (RA) professionals are increasingly being appointed to boardroom positions, where they can advise upon and further influence the strategic decisions of their companies.[24]

Recent Advancements

Recently, the Govt. of India has constituted a few autonomous bodies to gauge the standards of profession of Pharmacy & grade the colleges accordingly so that the students, parents, employers and funding agencies have a valid & reliable rating of the various Pharmacy colleges in the country.[25] These are:

(1) National Board of Accreditation (NBA) under the aegis of All India Council for Technical Education.

National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) by the University Grants Commission. The Drug Regulatory Affairs Professional The pharmaceutical research and development process of bringing a new drug to the market takes many years; it is therefore essential that the process be managed effectively from beginning to end in order to meet the regulatory requirements and permit a favorable evaluation of efficacy and safety in the shortest possible time.[26] The drug regulatory affairs (DRA) professional plays an important role in every phase of this process, from developing regulatory strategies following the discovery of a new chemical entity to planning post-marketing activities. The main responsibility of the DRA professional within a pharmaceutical company is to secure approval of drug submissions from Health Therapeutic Products Program (TPP) and to ensure regulatory compliance of marketed and investigational drugs with the Food and Drug Act and Regulations and TPP Guidelines/Policies.[27] In this position, the DRA professional must possess a proficient scientific background (B.Sc., M.Sc., Ph.D., M.D. B. Pharm, M.Pharm or Pharm.D.) and have acquired a thorough knowledge of Indian regulations as well as international regulations.[28] Because the regulatory environment is evolving rapidly toward global harmonization (several ICH guidelines have now been adopted by TPP) and mutual recognition between different health authorities across the world, it is a major challenge for the DRA professional to keep abreast of policy changes and determine how these changes affect the approval process. Consequently, the importance of DRA in the Ill-Made Alliance Brock Millman, 1998-04-20 In 1939 faced with the German invasion of Czechoslovakia and a growing Italian threat in the Balkans Turkey and Britain and later France signed an alliance in which Turkey linked itself politically and militarily with Britain and France in exchange for financial assistance for its rearmament program Despite the agreement however when the war came to the Mediterranean Turkey did not become involved Presenting a new interpretation of why the alliance failed Brock Millman explores Anglo Turkish relations leading up to the alliance of 1939 taking into account the broader economic military and strategic issues While previous accounts suggest that Turkey entered into the alliance reluctantly Millman contends that it not only wanted an alliance but sought as close a relationship as Britain would concede in the prewar years He attributes the failure of the alliance mainly to Britain's lack of support namely its inability to fit Turkey into its strategy in the Mediterranean its failure to produce a coherent operational plan that could encompass Turkish military co operation and its unwillingness to provide Turkey with timely and much needed financial material and industrial assistance Divided into three parts The Ill Made Alliance examines the roots and course of the Anglo Turkish rapprochement in the years 1934-38 the economic military and political factors in 1938-39 that inhibited development of the emerging alliance to the point where it might have been fully functional and the collapse of the alliance in 1939-40
